NAZI PLANES BOMB PARIS; MANY CASUALTIES, FIRES

PARIS, June 3 (AP)—The Germans bombed Paris today, wounding an uncounted number of persons, wrecking buildings and setting great fires. A fleet of swift bombers thundered across the heart of the city and while anti-aircraft guns and batteries of machine guns pounded away at them, they dropped their explosives.

For an hour the city underwent the most terrifying experience in its nine months of warfare.

A bomb fell six feet from William C. Bullitt, United States ambassador, but did not explode. Bullitt was about to have lunch with Air Minister Laurent Eynac. He and his host were just having sherry in the reception room of the building in which they were to eat.

The German bombers came. The sirens sounded. The two remained at their places. Less than ten minutes later the bomb pierced the roof and fell near the ambassador.

Three bombs fell in one section of the city, smashing a district postoffice, knocking off a corner of an apartment house, and smashing through the roof of a bank.

At least four persons were reported wounded, none seriously, in one section.

LIST MANY CASUALTIES

International News Service reported that six persons were known to have been killed and a score wounded when a large building was struck directly by bombs. At least 100 persons were cut by flying glass. Quick evacuation to air raid shelters saved many lives in this area.

"Two buildings are in flames here," the correspondent reported."—Editor's note.

From the roof of the American embassy in the Place de la Concorde columns of smoke were seen suddenly rising within the city. This continued for the best part of an hour.

During the protracted raid flames rose where bombs had started great fires.

The raid occurred at 1:20 p. m. (8:20) a. m. Boston time) and caught thousands of Parisians during the lunch hour.

Men and women, sitting in the bright sunshine on cafe terraces, heard the thunder of the planes as they moved across the city.

Some ducked for cover. Others, including army officers, remained

Eyewitness Story Of Paris Bombing

By KENNETH DOWNS

International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, June 3—Nine months to the day from the outbreak of war, German bombers raided Paris today, dropping scores of missiles that set at least half a dozen fires on the outskirts of the city.

Paris greeted the attack with stunned amazement.

The first check-up indicated western areas of Paris suffered worst.

Two bombs fell in the same street of one quarter, destroying two buildings only 100 yards apart. Several persons were believed killed and wounded.

The Germans apparently used light bombs of from 20 to 50 pounds each, but these were sufficient to wreck at least the upper stories of buildings wherever they hit.

BUILDINGS IN FLAMES

In this particular area windows were broken over a radius of 500 yards. Half a dozen buildings in the western outskirts could be seen in flames.

The air raid alarm sounded at 1:20 p. m. (8:20 a. m. E.D.T.), and within five minutes the skies were filled with the roar of planes.

Although the skies were cloudless, a haze hid the attackers from view.

With anti-aircraft guns sounding in all directions from the ring of emplacements surrounding the capital, a heavy thud of bombs continued without interruption until 1:50 p. m.

At that time the attack tapered off to occasional explosions, but already half a dozen columns of smoke could be seen billowing towards the sky on the outskirts of the city.

This correspondent was at the United States embassy with First Secretary Maynard Barnes when the long-expected attack came.

TERRIFIC DIN FILLS AIR

We rushed to the roof of building to watch the attack as French fighter planes went aloft, losing themselves in the haze along with the attackers.

The raiders as well as defence planes remained clouded from view throughout the attack, but the air was filled with the indescribable din of roaring motors, punctuated by the explosions of anti-aircraft guns.

A well-known French newspaperman telephoned our International News Service office that his home had been destroyed by a bomb.

"A bomb fell directly on the

NAZIS HURL 200,000 MEN ON DUNKIRK; BRITISH HOLD

A German army of 200,000 closing in on Allied troops still desperately fighting to defend the escape port of Dunkirk, was reported by the Nazi high command today in Associated Press dispatches to have captured the strongly fortified city of Bergues, only five miles away.

Air-raid alarm sirens sounded in Paris as German bombers and reconnaissance squadrons droned over France again—apparently to impress Italy with the power of the Nazi air force to assist on a new southern front, if Italy enters the war.

The British were making a last-ditch stand also at Calais, where a "lost battalion" was thrusting back everything the Nazis could throw in men and tanks.

New indications that Mussolini was about to plunge his peiple into the war came with announcement in Rome that the 1942 Italian Exposition, which Il Duce once referred to as proof that Italy was not contemplating war, was indefinitely postponed.

The Prioux army—with their general captured, according to Berlin claims—played the vital part in the new heralded withdrawal of four-fifths of the British expeditionary force.

Their tanks and armored cars held off the Germans in the 40-mile retreat from Lille to the sea after King Leopold's surrender exposed the Allied northern flank.

1000 TO 1 BATTLE

The British "no surrender" garrison at Calais fought from behind the stout walls of a 17th century citadel. They fought outnumbered 1000 to one, yet they still drove off every attack to dislodge them.

A French military spokesman acknowledged renewed furious attacks on Dunkirk by German land, sea and air forces was making evacuation of the remaining Allied soldiers there "increasingly difficult."

The Germans reported 59 Allied planes destroyed to 15 Nazi planes "missing."

BERLIN also claimed 330,000 French and English have been captured during the Flanders drive. NBC in New York picked up a British broadcast in German which said Nazi casualties in the battling had totalled 600,000 to date. H. R. Knickerbocker said French estimates set the Nazi dead at 100,000 with 400,000 wounded, missing and captured.

ATTACKING IN WAVES

Waves of German bombing planes—attacking 60 at a time—"indiscriminately" bombed the entire Dunkirk area, but failed to halt the procession of the last of the Allied troops from Flanders, London dispatches from International News Service correspondents said.

As the day progressed the parade of vessels into English ports from Dunkirk, all laden to the gunwales with troops, took on once more the proportions of an armada.

The latest soldiers to arrive said they had to wait many hours for a favorable opportunity to get aboard the vessels, since they were

2 More Found Dead In Lakeville Blaze

LAKEVILLE, June 3—Firemen and state police, digging into the ruins of a cottage where a 74-year-old widower died early yesterday in a fire, were amazed to find two more bodies today, although the widower was supposed to be living alone.

So badly burned were the two bodies that it was impossible to learn the sex of the victims, let alone identify them.

When flames destroyed his little cottage in Precinct st., at 3 a. m., yesterday, Benno Muthow, the widower, died of suffocation, Middleboro firemen recovering the body.

Today the firemen were delving in the ruins in an atempt to learn the cause of the fire when, in a section that apparently had felt the fire most, they found the other two bodies.

No one in the area appeared to know of two men who might have been staying with Muthow who, until he retired recently, was proprietor of a roadside stand here.

State Police Sergt. Joseph Burke, from Bridgewater barracks and in charge of the ruins-searching party, notified the state fire marshal's office.

State Police Lieut. Edward Murtagh, assigned to the fire marshal's office, is investigationg.

The two new bodies were turned over to Medical Examiner A. F. Budreski of Brockton for autopsy

DATES KNIGHT FOR NIGHT

Harvard students again prove the age of chivalry is not dead . . . as witness Wingate Green, Jr., and Robert Graff, who escorted Ede Zanga (here) and Marguerite Murphy, both 17, of Dorchester, on a date last night. When time for going home came, girls found last train had left . . . and decided to spend night with Marguerite's relatives in Cambridge. So, to the door . . . and knockings went unheard. Knight Green or Graff tried to climb porch . . . and ye cops came. Explanations got girls a ride back to Dorchester, boys a walk home.

Ice Berg Worry Over for Year

Icebergs are one menace the world won't have to worry about this year!

For only the second time since the Titanic sank 28 years ago with a loss of 1517 lives, the International Ice Patrol has been deemed unnecessary, according to the recommendation of Lt. William P. Hawley, of the U. S. Coast Guard cutter Chelan which arrived here today from a three weeks ice observation cruise.

The Chelan, one of three cutters that make up the U. S. ice unit, encountered only one floating iceberg in 3800 miles. This one was discovered south of the Newfoundland area in a region usually dotted by 130 or more at this time of the year.

PAWN IN COURT BATTLE

International News Photograph Service

CENTER OF BATTLE—Linda Ware, 14-year-old starlet, today was before Detroit court, where her father, George W. Stillwagon, steel worker, sought her custody from her uncle. More than a year ago Stillwagon petitioned to be made guardian of the girl's estate, but case never reached court.

FIANCE DEAD, SHE TAKES POISON

Sometimes, when one is grieving, three weeks seem a lifetime.

Three weeks ago today, William Crean, 44, of Warren ave., South End, fell dead of a heart attack in a Columbus ave., South End, restaurant.

It was a staggering blow for Miss Marie McGuigan, 40, also of Warren ave. She was his fiancee. They had planned soon to be married. Now all was ended.

Today Miss McGuigan walked uncertainly into the same restaurant and announced that she had just taken a powerful poison. Then she collapsed.

To police who took her to City Hospital in a critical condition, and to doctors, the woman whispered, they said, that she too had wanted to die, in the same place where her man had died.

Her name was placed on the danger list.

Crean was a former Boston policeman, in 1928 and 1929, and once was a deputy collector of internal revenue.

LECHE TO APPEAL

ALEXANDRIA, La., June 3 (INS) — An appeal is being planned by Richard Webster Leche, former Governor of Louisiana, from his conviction on federal charges of using the mails to defraud.

PRISONER RUNS AMOK IN HOSPITAL

Obtaining a powerful drug in some unascertained manner, a Deer Island House of Correction prisoner ran amok Saturday night at Long Island Hospital, where he and 19 other prisoners were in a special ward, under treatment for various illnesses.

This was learned today after a report had reached City Hall that 20 of the prisoners had partaken of drugs and that they had been obtained through breaking into a medicine cabinet.

Officials of the Institutions Department at City Hall identified the unruly prisoner as J. Martin Farrell, 24, of Cameron st., Brookline, sentenced last Nov. 28 to one year on a charge of assault and battery.

Dr. James V. Sacchetti, medical director of the hospital, denied that any of the prisoners except one, and possibly another, had partaken of the drug, but said the second man had caused no trouble and it had not been certain that he also was involved.

While the drug-inflamed prisoner was performing his antics, it was learned at City Hall, the hospital was in an uproar, and it was finally necessary to place him in a straitjacket and ship him back to Deer Island, where today he was in solitary.

"He got hold of a drug," Dr. Sacchetti admitted today. "Whether he got it from a visitor or from someone among the help I cannot say."

Dr. Sacchetti denied that a medicine cabinet had been broken into, as reported, and said he had examined the cabinet and found no evidence of it having been tampered with.

Admitting the possibility that a second prisoner might have taken some of the drug, the doctor said:

"It may be that there was one other, but he was as harmless as a cat. This story is correct, on my word of honor."

CLASS REUNION SET

The Class of 1924 of the High School of Commerce will hold a reunion and dinner at the Cocoanut Grove Thursday night.

When the mercury hits 83, as it did yesterday, there's only one way to keep cool in the mind of Arlene McQuillan of Cambridge . . . and sitting in the water at Revere Beach (like this) is it. She was one among thousands who flocked to the beach . . . and many took their first dip in the chilly water.

Night Club Safe Is Robbed

Yeggmen, believed to have lain concealed in the premises when the place was closed early Sunday, robbed the Latin Quarter night club safe of about $1500.

When porters entered today to clean the cafe in Winchester st., South End, they found that the combination of the safe had been battered off and the door pried open.

Police, seeking fingerprints, said they could find no evidence that entrance to the club had been forced.

180 FACE DEER ISLE ISOLATION

Immediate quarantine of 180 men, mostly prisoners, at the Deer Island House of Correction was ordered today by Dr. Frederick J. Bailey, deputy commissioner in charge of communicable diseases.

Dr. Bailey's action was aimed at isolation of all those who had come in contact with Chris L. Ormand, 46, Milford st., South End, who was found to be suffering from spinal meningitis.

It was pointed out by Dr. Bailey that the incubation period for the disease is three weeks and that since Ormand had been an inmate since May 1 he had probably contracted the disease while an inmate.

Examination of the 180 men placed in quarantine will be made in an attempt to detect a possible carrier of the disease with whom Ormand had come in contact.

Ormand was removed to the Long Island Hospital when the nature of his illness was discovered.

A Boston police sergeant and two officers who transported Ormand to the hospital from Deer Island were also placed in quarantine when the nature of the prisoner's illness was diagnosed.

The three officers are Sergt. William Shirar, and Patrolmen Henry Weiss and George Drown, all of the Harbor Police Station.

Educators Stress World Need Of Stability at Graduations

Subjects ranged from dangerous philosophies to prayerless lives and the need for preserving the ideals of womanhood as New England educators delivered baccalaureate sermons to thousands of graduates in Greater Boston schools of higher learning.

The conflict abroad furnished a backdrop for many of the speakers, who declared the students are embarking on business and professional careers at one of the critical periods of history.

WORLD TOTTERS

Such a theme was used by Rev. Fr. David H. McDonald before 97 seniors of Emmanuel College who were told:

"The world is tottering and crumbling above our heads. Men who have built the structure of their states without God have defiled man. From false principles they have deduced ruinous conclusions and translated them into a barbarism thus far unknown in human history."

"But," he asked, "what American does not enjoy a challenge? You are going to battle under the standard of the cross of Christ emerged victorious."

Technology

At the Massachusetts Institute of which history records has always Technology, the graduating class was told by Harvard's James B. Conant that America must take the middle road. If the civilization which made America the greatest free nation on earth is to be preserved, he said, the people must prevent either the establishment of a permanent ruling class or a regimented collectivistic state.

The middle road for America, Conant said, is one which provides a maximum of opportunity and the minimum of inherited privilege.

Today, approximately 1500 alumni visited M. I. T. for their annual Alumni Day. They joined the graduating seniors, who were celebrating Class Day.

Portia-Coolidge

The automobile was used for comparative purposes by Rev. Dr. Neilson Campbell Hannay before the graduating classes of Portia Law School, and Calvin Coolidge College of Liberal Arts in the Old South Church.

Quoting from philosophers who estimated that most people use only 10 to 40 per cent of their mental resources, he said "we are needlessly little people." He continued:

"The best automobile in the world becomes worthless unless the spark plugs are clean. So must we, through new experiences, spark our physical, mental and spiritual potentialities into greater realities." He urged the graduates to contact with men of powerful wills and thus "become greater than we are."

Regis College

"Womanhood in a very special way finds its noblest and fullest expression in the lofty ideals of the spiritual and the divine," the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Richard J. Quinlan, diocesan supervisor of Catholic schools, told Regis College seniors.

Education, he said, frequently is defined as a preparation for life, but "life" in all its fullness cannot be restricted to things earthly and material."

Gordon College

The spiritual likewise was stressed by Rev. Dr. Harold J. Ockenga, pastor of the Park Street Church, before 59 seniors at the Gordon College of Theology and Missions.

He warned the graduates they would be persecuted if they did God's work well, but added that "God would give them the power to do that work, regardless of persecution."

Red Cross in Final Big Push

Volunteer workers were canvassing homes today in the final drive of the Boston chapter of the American Red Cross for its $300,000 war relief quota.

Teams will take part in the house-to-house canvass throughout the week, Lawrence Coolidge, general vice-chairman, said.

"I have confidence that the people in the residential sections will give until the quota for those sections is subscribed," he declared.

LODGE SET TO OFFER WAR PROGRAM TO U. S.

Proposed universal military service for all boys of 18, rich and poor, today highlighted a six-point $1,086,000,000 military program for Uncle Sam by Massachusetts' Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge.

Senator Lodge, who said he Senate submit his program to the senate soon, discounted suggestions that CCC enrollees and other such government-employed youths be placed in military service.

SEES GRAVE DANGER

"While there can be no objection to optional instructions in trades and skills, which would have a war-time value, there would be the gravest danger to sending these boys out for service with the combat troops," he said.

"It would be far better to have universal service for all boys of 18 for a six-months period, and expose the well-to-do boys to the broadening and hardening influences of army life, rather than to confine it to a single class which happened to be in moderate means financially."

Senator Lodge recommended a regular army of 750,000 officers and men and an air force of 11,000 planes and 176.000 personnel with the National Guard as a first line of defense in the field of anti-aircraft artillery.

He called for a defense program which would embrace the western hemisphere, including the two American continents as well as the islands, waters and shores comprising the Caribbean Sea.

DEALERS CONCEDE 3D TERM

By GEORGE DURNO

International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 3 (INS)—General assumption that President Roosevelt will be a third term candidate today sent other Democratic 1940 hopefuls scurrying apparently to win the Vice-Presidential end of the ticket.

Congressional friends of Speaker William B. Bankhead, for instance, were urging that he should not accept the anticipated job of keynoter and temporary chairman at the Democratic convention, which opens in Chicago, July 15.

Bankhead is Alabama's "favorite son." he has expressed appreciation of the honor but declared himself a supporter of the President should Mr. Roosevelt elect to be a candidate again.

The Democratic committee on arrangements probably will be selected this week. This group will recommend names for keynoter and for permanent chairman of the Chicago convention.

Bankhead has been accepted in Democratic circles as probable choice for keynoter and Senate majority leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky has been most mentioned to wield the permanent gavel.

It was an interesting commentary on the Democratic political situation that Bankhead's backers were urging that he might do better by remaining in the background as Alabama's favorite son and making a serious run for the vice presidential nomination.

Stocks Mixed In Dull Market

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP) — Stocks moved over a narrowly irregular route in today's market.

Scattered steels, coppers and specialties were in demand now and then, but numerous issues failed to make progress. It was one of the slowest sessions of the year to date.

Supported were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Anaconda, American Smelting, Lockheed, Boeing, Freeport Sulphur, Electric Boat, Loft, American Telephone and International Papr.

Bonds and commodities were moderately steady. "Free" Sterling and the French franc were lower in terms of the dollar.

With the Germans bombing the outskirts of Paris, southeastern France and pressing their drive against Dunkirk, traders derived little buying inspiration from the war bulletins.

Lewis, Thomas Split On Allied Aid Issue

WORCESTER, June 3 (AP)—Alfred Baker Lewis, veteran New England Socialist leader, disclosed today that he had split with Norman Thomas, the party's candidate for President, and had himself declined to accept any nomination because of Thomas' opposition to economic aid to the Allies "in their fight against Hitlerism."

Thomas, at the Socialist convention yesterday, attacked the principle of "hemispheric defense" and accused President Roosevelt of misleading appraisals of the nation's defenses.

Lewis, several times Socialist candidate for Governor of Massachusetts, asserted that "in opposing economic aid to the Allies in their hour of desperate need, the majority of the Socialist party are doing exactly what the Nazi Bundists and others of Hitler's supporters are doing, even though they are doing so for different reasons."

"Without American economic aid," he continued, "the dictators will win the war, rule all of Europe, wipe out political democracy and the labor movement there and start to arm against us with the resources of the whole of Europe at their command."

Thomas asked a 100 per cent tax on armament profits.

"As a Socialist, I know full well the danger that comes from excess profits for munition makers," Lewis said.

"The way to meet this danger is public ownership of munition manufacturing establishments. But the danger to democracy and the labor movement from big profits to munition makers is far less than the danger from a victory for Hitler and his abominable principles," he added.

700 Admitted To Citizenship

More than 700 immigrants climaxed five years of waiting here today when they were sworn in as citizens of the United States, before Judge George C. Sweeney in naturalization court.

After hearing a brief explanation of the value and meaning of U. S. citizenship in the world today, the new Americans renounced all foreign allegiance, and agreed under oath to defend "the laws and Constitution of the United States."

Meanwhile, in the filing bureau of the immigration and naturalization offices, clerks reported applications for final citizenship papers have almost doubled in the past week and the number of requests for first papers from citizens of Europe's war torn countries is increasing daily.

5 and 10 Heir's Wife Reported Recovering

WASHINGTON, June 3 (INS)—Mrs. Woolworth Donahue, of New York, wife of the Five-and-Ten heir, was "doing very well" at Doctors Hospital today after an emergency operation which halted a trip from Palm Beach to New York.

Mrs. Donahue's physician said he was unable to reveal the nature of her illness except that it was "an acute condition which required immediate operation."

FOUR BODIES SOUGHT IN BOATING TRAGEDY

PORTLAND, Ore., June 3 (INS)—Officials in a score of tugboats searched the Columbia River for the bodies of four persons feared drowned after the lone survivor of the boating tragedy was rescued.

Missing and believed drowned were James Rowley, 28, brother of the survivor; Mrs. James Rowley, 28; Mrs. Ann McClain, 37, and Virgil Deaver, 19. All were residents of Washougal.

2—The name and address of each family, with the number of children, boys and girls, must be submitted on the official entry form, together with a letter of not more than 300 words describing the family and explaining why it should be selected as the Typical American Family in Massachusetts. No photographs will be returned.

3—Entries will NOT be judged by the literary style or excellence of the letters submitted, but strictly on the qualifications and characteristics of the family.

4—A recent photograph or clear snapshot of the family must accompany the entry.

5—The entry of a candidate family may be submitted by a relative or friend, or by a member of the family.

6—Entries close on Saturday, June 15, at midnight. The completed form must be mailed or delivered to the Advertiser-American Typical American Family Editor, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, Mass., before that time.

7—The selection of the Typical Family will be made by a committee of distinguished Massachusetts men and women will qualified to establish the requirements of a Typical American Family, and the committee's decision will be final.

8—The parents and two children of the Typical Family selected, the eldest child to be not over 18, will be transported from Boston to the New York World's Fair and back by automobile, with all meals and hotel expenses paid. They will be entertained at the Fair for one week, beginning July 22, without any cost whatever to themselves. The Family, while at the Fair, will live for one week in a completely furnished house built inside the Fair Grounds in accordance with the standards set up for home construction by the Federal Housing Administration. The house accommodates four persons, and for this reason only four members of the Family selected may go to the Fair. The Family will have complete freedom of action as to what they want to do and see. They will, in fact, live each day as they would during any normal holiday period.

9—It is understood that entrants give permission to publish photographs and stories of their Family.

10—This competition is not open to employes of the Boston Sunday Advertiser-Boston Evening American, nor of other publications or advertising media.

Less than two weeks now remain for entries in the Typical American Family in Massachusetts contest, the winner of which will enjoy a week-long, expense-free and exciting vacation at the New York World's Fair of 1940.

Midnight a week from next Saturday is the deadline for entries in this unique contest, sponsored by the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser, in co-operation with the World's Fair management

Meanwhile, a deluge of entries from American Legion families in Massachusetts is expected as a result of the call by State Department Commander Thomas J. Quinn for families of Bay State veterans to compete for the honor.

LEGION FAMILY

"I believe that the Typical American Family in Massachusetts is the American Legion family," said Commander Quinn. "An American Legion family represents 100 per cent Americanism.

"It is my hope that of the great number of Bay State Legionnaires entering the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser contest, one will be selected to represent this great Commonwealth at the World's Fair."

Whatever family is chosen will be in for an exciting time during the week of July 22 at the Fair—and the beauty of it all is that the family will not be required to spend one penny from the time it leaves Boston until it returns.

More even than that—before the winning family leaves for the Fair, making the round-trip free in one of the newest Ford automobiles, driven by a Ford Motor Co. chauffeur, the family members will be completely outfitted for the trip by Sears, Roebuck & Co.

This concern has also completely furnished the two newly-built FHA model houses on the grounds of the Fair, in one of which the Massachusetts family will live during the week's stay.

OTHER PRIZES

And remember—in addition to the principal award to the winning family, there are four other World's Fair prizes for the next four families picked as runners-up:

Second prize: Free transportation, round-trip, between Boston and New York via New Haven Railroad; free admission to the Fair for three days; free entertainment and free guides—plus $40.

Third prize: Free transportation, via American Airlines; free admission for three days; free entertainment and guides—plus $30.

Fourth prize: Free transportation, via Eastern Steamship Lines, cabin and meals free; free admission to the Fair for three days; free entertainment and guides—plus $20.

SUPREME BENCH HAS BUSY YEAR

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP)—The Supreme Court, on which the five Roosevelt-appointed jurists now form a majority, reached today the end of a term marked by vital verdicts on the 50-year-old anti-trust laws.

As the nine justices gathered for a last brief session before scattering for vacations, the 1939-40 session's record showed:

A ruling that the Sherman Act of 1890, which forbids "combinations in restraint of trade," outlaws "any combination which tampers with price structures."

An opinion that labor unions are not subject to the anti-trust law unless their activities "operated to restrain commercial competition in some substantial way."

These conclusions headed a series of decisions considered in legal circles to be of special importance because of the Justice Department's anti-trust activity against a large number of business concerns and labor organizations.

This has been the first term in which justices chosen by President Roosvelt have outnumbered earlier appointees.

In decisions this year the court has prohibited private business from attempting to regulate prices, but has given a go-ahead signal to the federal government and to the states.

It upheld the 1937 Bituminous Coal Act, saying that "price control is one of the means abailable to the states and to the Congress." The law was designed to stabilize the industry by fixing prices and regulating marketing.

There also were a large number of decisions sustaining orders by the National Labor Relations Board. Several opinions held that a federal court cannot interfere with factual findings by the labor board and can review only questions of law.

Italy on War's Brink Calls Off Rome Fair

ROME, June 3 (AP)—The Italian government today announced indefinite postponement of the 1942 Rome exposition, which Premier Mussolini once referred to as proof that Italy was not planning to go to war.

The reason given for the postponement was that several nations had requested more time to prepare exhibits.

Italy's "behind the scenes" military mobilization proceeded, with the pink cards which call up reservists being delivered at additional homes every mail.

PEOPLE URGED TO LEAVE

Residents of Turin, Italy's big industrial center close to the French frontier, were urged by the press to depart for country districts as the nation quietly pressed general mobilization plans in preparation for war.

Throughout Italy the population, convinced that the zero hour is not far distant, anxiously awaited word as to where and when the first blow would be struck in behalf of long-agitated "national aspirations."

Uncounted reservists found in their mail pink slips ordering them to report to their regiments and they hastily exchanged civilian garb for uniforms.

The individual notification system obviated the necessity of posting a general mobilization proclamation, but any doubt that the army is being put on a war time footing was dissolved by the authoritative Fascist Editor Giovanni Ansaldo in his weekly broadcast to Italian troops.

MOBILIZATION

"Mobilization is under way," Ansaldo, editor of Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano's newspaper, Il Telegrafo of Leghorn, declared emphatically.

He said that "ever stronger contingents" are reaching concentration points, and warned unmobilized reservists that they might expect a call to arms at any moment.

Some quarters ventured the opinion that some announcement concerning Premier Mussolini's intentions might follow the scheduled meeting of the Italian Cabinet tomorrow, but this possibility was scouted by the newspaper Il Resto Del Carlino, a leading exponent of intervention.

Il Resto forecast, however, that Italy would move soon.

Some observers believed that the arrival of the Italian liner Conte di Savoia at Genoa yesterday, after omitting the usual Naples stop, had brought the deadline closer.

Arrival of the vessel coincided with the departure from Genoa of the United States liner Manhattan, homeward bound with 2000 American and foreign refugees—three times her normal passenger capacity. Steamship agents said at least 1000 persons who had hoped to sail on the Manhattan were left behind.

OTHER LINERS

The American liners President Harrison and Excambion are due to sail today or tomorrow but they already are booked to capacity. There was a possibility that some of those still seeking passage might sail aboard the Washington, due at Bordeaux, France, Saturday, but United States lines officials were not sure whether the ship would call at Genoa.

Among the Manhattan's passengers was Mrs. Myron Taylor, wife of President Roosevelt's personal representative to the Vatican. Mr. Taylor remained behind.

If you have to get up 3 or more times a night your rest is broken and it's no wonder if you feel old and run down before your time. Cystex costs only 35c at druggists and the guarantee protects you.

POPE SEEN WEIGHING ITALY AIM

VATICAN CITY, June 3 (AP)—Pope Pius XII conferred today with Monsignor Francesco Borgogini Duca, Papal nuncio to Italy.

What the Pontiff discussed in the private audience was not disclosed, but some foreign observers presumed their talk concerned the possibility of Italy entering the war.

European belligerents are "far from conforming to the principles of humanity" in their treatment of non-combatants, the Pope declared yesterday in an appeal to the countries at war "to remember always those duties of humanity which do not lose any of their value under war law and morality."

In extending his paternal love "to all our sons and daughters, both those of the German population . . . and those of the Allied states," the Pope deplored the widening scope of the war.

He said populations in occupied areas should be treated "as, in a similar case, an invader would like to see his own citizens treated."

Nelson Sinking Denied by Britain

LONDON, June 3 (INS)—There is "no vestige of truth" in the German claim that the British battleship Nelson has been sunk, it was announced officially in London today.

TO LEAVE ITALY—Sir Percy Loraine, British minister to Rome, today was preparing to leave the Italian capital and return home. Preparation for departure was considered in military circles as in indication that Italy's entry into the war was imminent.

2 Flanders Heroes Win Legion's Honors

PARIS, June 3 (AP) — General Georges Blanchard and General Rene Jacques Prioux, France's two heroes of the battle of Flanders, have been raised to higher rank in the Legion of Honor on recommendation of Generalissimo Maxime Weygand.

Blanchard, commander of the Allied armies in northern France, has been raised to the highest rank, the Grand Cross, in the Legion of Honor. Prioux, commander of the First French Army which still is covering the Allies' withdrawal from Dunkirk, was made a grand officer of the Legion.

LORD HAW HAW'S BROTHER NABBED

LONDON, June 3 (AP) — Frank Joyce, 22-year-old brother of William Joyce, identified in some British quarters as "Lord Haw Haw," the Oxford-speaking German radio broadcaster was arrested today under defense regulations and confined to Brixton jail. Scotland Yard detectives arrested Joyce Saturday night.

Another brother, Quentin, 25, an air ministry clerk until the outbreak of the war, has been interned for some time for his propaganda activities.

Higher Taxes Loom As Defense Offset

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP)—New Congressional demands that the government tighten its belt and avoid greater deficits gave rise today to proposals for boosting special defense taxes beyond $656,000,000 a year.

The house ways and means committee set that figure before President Roosevelt's second message last week asking further expansion of the preparedness program.

Senator George (D.) of Ga. told reporters that the country would be in "a serious condition" unless $750,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 annually is provided in the pending tax legislation. Senator Brown (D.) of Mich. urged in a speech last night:

"Let us meet the challenge (of defense) by paying the bill."

'MUSTARD PLASTER'

Senator Vandenberg (R.) of Mich. proposed "complete reorganization of the government's finances" in talking with newsmen, and called the defense tax bill "a mustard plaster on a cancer."

Senator Capper (R.) of Kansas expressed the opinion in a radio talk that the proposed 10 per cent increase in income taxes would not be sufficient. He predicted that eventually Congress would have to lower the income tax exemptions.

While the ways and means committee pushed hearings on the tax measure in the hope of completing action this week, there were these other developments in the rearmament campaign:

1—The national executive board of the CIO was called into session with John L. Lewis today to determine its policy toward the defense program. Aides of Lewis said that the group probably would declare its intention to cooperate fully.

2—A manufacturers' committee agreed to report today to William S. Knudsen of the National Defense Commission on how, when and where a $200,000,000 list of machine tools for armament industries could be supplied. This is the first major step in gearing American industry to the needs of the military services.

3—Senator Pepper (D.) of Florida was understood to have suggested to President Roosevelt that the army and navy be authorized to "trade in" older warplanes to the makers, who then could resell them to the Allies for quick delivery. Critics argued that the United States should not weaken its own air forces at this time.

BEGIN SURVEY

4—The Federal Works Agency began a survey to determine how much public works labor could be transferred or trained for defense preparations. Administrator John Carmody said that the organization is equipped for virtually any type of civil construction.

5—The Senate took up the House-approved naval expansion bill, with every indication that it would be passed as expeditiously as other defense measures. The Senate naval committee, meanwhile, studied legislation to expedite building of ships already authorized.

The one proposal on which continuing criticism was heard among lawmakers was Mr. Roosevelt's request for authority to call the national guard to active duty, should he deem it necessary.

AIDS UNIT

GIFT—An order for ten ambulances for a unit operated by her friends today had been received in London from Countess Haugwitz Reventlow, the former Barbara Hutton. She cabled from Santa Monica, Cal.

Police Hunt Bogus Air Stock Salesman

On complaint by officials of the American Airlines, police today searched for a bogus pilot who has sought to sell stock in the company to unsuspecting house owners.

Officials reported the man first attempted to rent rooms and then talked glibly about aviation matters before trying to unload fraudulent stock. It was further reported that he had charged many articles in department stores to the airlines.

British Hold Port For French Comrades

under constant German shellfire and aerial attacks.

They said great fires were still raging at Dunkirk as a result of the German bombings and that small towns and villages in the zone were a "shambles."

At least 1000 German planes and 15 fresh German divisions were reported pounding at Dunkirk, where rear guard defenders still held out to cover the evacuation.

PLAN NEW SMASH

Berlin reported constantly increasing pressure on Dunkirk, the Associated Press said.

The high command's communique indicated that northern France still was the main battlefield although Nazi armies prepared for a new smash in the west which informed quarters said might be launched anywhere between Norway and the Swiss border.

"No rest for the enemy" was the Nazi watchword.

The German high command admitted that the Allied rearguard still held Dunkirk, and that the German progress on the port from the west, south and east was slow because of "terrain which has been inundated and criss-crossed by numerous ditches."

"Fighting planes and dive-bomber units continued the attack on Dunkirk June 2," the German high command said. "In this action two destroyers, one patrol boat, one freighter of 5000 tons, were sunk, and one warship, two destroyers and 10 merchant ships damaged by bomb hits."

AIR RAIDS ON FRANCE

On the other side of the broadening war theater in France, the communique reported air raids extending as far south "as the Rhone valley and Marseille."

In the "No-Man's Land" zone between the Siegfried and Maginot lines, the high command said. German troops made a "forward thrust on both sides of Forbach" and "the enemy retreated to the Maginot line and left prisoners, weapons and equipment in our hands."

At the same time, the French high command reported "all quiet" on their vast western line. French officials predicted a lull of possibly three weeks before the Nazi thunder-heads could recoil and strike again forcibly.

More than 50 dead and 100 injured were left in the wake of the air attacks over the weekend.

BRITAIN CHEERS UP

The British people, recently in the depths of despair by entrapment of their army in Flanders, were noticeably more optimistic today.

Their joy leaped by bounds on announcement by War Secretary Anthony Eden that four-fifths of the "trapped" Britishers now were back in England.

Eden, who spoke briefly over the radio, indicated more than 140 000 Britishers had been rescued in addition to "tens of thousands of our French allies." He said other French troops had been removed from France.

Although large units of the Allied navies were employed around Dunkirk, the operations were carried out at the same time as reinforcements were being sent to the British-French naval concentration in the eastern Mediterranean, it was said.

Informed sources said the Mediterranean fleet had been "considerably" strengthened to meet any eventuality and is now more than a match for any sea force Italy could muster.

ALLIES OFFER LIMIT

Diplomatic circles said the Allies had gone as far as the could in offering to negotiate with Mussolini for satisfaction of Italy's "legitimate aspirations."

It was generally believed here the week would bring an answer to all questions concerning Italy's intentions.

There were unconfirmed reports that Prime Minister Churchill, shortly before assuming office, had sent Mussolini a letter expressing Britain's willingness to discuss Italy's territorial aspirations in post-war settlements.

Operations on the active war front, meanwhile, were highlighted by official announcement of new British successes in the air over Dunkirk.

PLANES FROM U. S. BEST

The air ministry declared that British fighter planes had destroyed or severely damaged 169 German planes in that area over the week-end and estimated British losses at 37.

American-built Hudson bombers were credited with playing an important part in these air battles. Three Hudsons, the air ministry said, broke up a formation of 40 German planes maneuvering to attack a convoy, and in 13 minutes shot down three Junkers 87 dive bombers.

On the home front King George put the prestige of the throne behind a campaign to speed armaments production. The press pictured the King testing a Bren machine gun during an inspection of an arms factory and he was quoted as telling the workers:

"We've got the men if you can give them weapons."

As a defense against parachuters and the landing of troops by plane all road signs were removed and trenches were dug across golf courses.

In Berlin military circles left no doubt that Germany is preparing another lightning stroke, and the week-end bombing of Marseilles by the Nazis hinted that the curtain is going up on new theaters of war.

Belief that action is being planned on a grand scale was heightened by the publication in morning newspapers of an appeal to "adventuresome, energetic German youth" to volunteer for training as air force officers.

MODERN WARFARE—With Italy on the verge of plunging into the European war, Italian weapons of war are poised, ready . . . and the nation today is mobilizing. Here, an Italian flame-thrower is used by an infantry detachment.

2 British Hospitel Ships Are Bombed

LONDON. June 3 (AP) — Two British hospital ships, the Worthing and Paris, were bombed and machine-gunned by German planes off the French coast Sunday, it was announced here today. Neither had British expeditionary force wounded aboard.

A 17-year-old boy was killed on one of the ships. The Paris was abandoned. The Worthing returned to port.

Royalty Hit Hard in British Casualty List

LONDON, June 3 (AP)—Disclosure that the Duke of Northumberland and other prominent Britons have been killed in action served as a warning to the public today to expect the army's heaviest casualties of the war when the Flanders casualty lists are published.

The death of the 27-year-old duke, a wealthy coal property owner, in the retreat to Dunkirk, was announced when his personal standard, a blue lion rampant, was flown at half-staff on the keep of Alnwick Castle, his stately ancestral home.

He was a lieutenant in the crack Grenadier Guards, his father's old regiment.

Evelyn Boscawen, lieutenant in the Coldstream Guards and 23-year-old heir to Viscount Falmouth, also was killed in action in Flanders.

It was announced today that 30-year-old Viscount Cowdray, a captain in the Sussex Yeomanry, was wounded in Flanders, and that his left arm had been amputated.

Viscount Cowdray captained the British polo team that played in the United States last year. His marriage to Lady Anne Bridgeman in July, 1939, was a brilliant social event.

Graphic Eyewitness Story of Paris Raid

roof, wrecking the house," he said, his voice shaking. "My family had time to reach a deep shelter. They were not hurt."

"Three bombs fell 150 yards from where I was lunching today (four words censored) in the brilliant sunshine of a June day," Robert Okin, of the Associated Press foreign staff, cabled immediately after the raid.

SHOCK LIKE QUAKE

"The cafe where I was sitting trembled as though in an earthquake, and the shrill whine of bombs was plainly audible before the explosives crashed just around the corner

"One flattened a district post-office into a mass of rubble. Another, apparently a small one, nearly took the corner off an apartment house. A third hit diagonally into the cellar of a bank, leaving the bank standing.

"For an area of a block around where each bomb struck, the streets were littered with glass and mortar. Pieces of steel girders lay crumpled in the middle of the street.

"In the distance black smoke was rising from a fire and the air was thick with dust for half an hour after the bombs dropped.

CALLS FOR WINE

"People sat calmly at tables in the cafe as the bombs fell.

"One man called for more wine in between explosions.

"Several army officers laid down their forks, but others continued to eat calmly. A few people went into the basement."

The first blast of the warning sirens sent thousands of Parisians to cover while the streets were filled with racing ambulances and first-aid trucks, all rushing for their appointed places

As clouds of smoke began to rise one after another on the outskirts, it became easily apparent that German incendiary bombs were taking their toll.

Paris has had numerous air raid alarms in recent months and on May 21 a few bombs were dropped in the Seine-et-Oise district near Versailles. But it was not until today that Paris itself shook from the thud of falling bombs.

CAN'T SEE DEATH COMING

The immense explosive power of the German weapons was attested by the fact that buildings shook and window-panes rattled unceasingly as the bombs fell outside the city. The immediate assumption was that the Nazi planes were attacking military objectives such as railway junctions, factories and munitions stores, but in the intense confusion it was impossible to obtain details.

Due to the haze in the sky, Parisians had to rely upon their sense of hearing rther than sight to appreciate the extent of the raid. Those who were present during this long-feared assault agreed that the skies were literally "filled" with squadrons of attackers, if the noise they made were any criterion.

The alarm ended at 2:30 p. m., one hour and ten minutes after it sounded.

GLARE FROM FLAMES

Until the "all clear' came all dispatches and telephone calls were held up.

We are now sending reporters out to the bombed area to find out the extent of the damage. As I left the embassy roof I could see the red glare of flames shooting up from what appeared to be a group of apartment houses.

One eyewitness of the raid reported that 15 badly wounded men and women were carried into a shelter he occupied during the attack

For the present, we are forbidden to give any indication of the locality of the hits.

Throughout the raid, the stunned populace of Paris remained calm The general reaction was one of grim fury.

NAZI BOMBS BLAST PARIS

where they were, eating calmly. One man ordered more wine.

Observers who spotted the first of the invading fleet, said the planes were coming over in great numbers.

From the roof of the American embassy, other observers noted that the dreaded bombers suddenly zoomed heavenward into the blue sky to get out of range of the anti-aircraft guns.

As the guns opened up, they were joined by machine guns mounted on rooftops. Then came the thunder of the French fighting ships taking off in pursuit.

Traders at the Bourse, idling in the sunshine or talking about the market, heard the outburst of gunfire, the noise of the planes, the piercing shrieks of the air raid sirens, and scattered like frightened ants from astirred up nest.

BLASTS, DUST, SMOKE

Night workers, dozing abed, grabbed their clothes and dashed for the security of basements and air raid shelters The drone of the planes, the steady chatter of machine guns, the roar of the big guns continued.

Where bombs struck the air was choked with dust Peaceful streets were suddenly ripped up and littered with rubble, plaster, stones, broken tiles, twisted chunks of steel girders.

From the outlying districts smoke rose into the vision of men watching from roofs in the center of the city.

The crash of the bombs could be heard all over the city. Windows shook. Soma fell out from the deep vibrations.

Dropping bombs sent up showers of dirt.

For an hour the alarm lasted, the dread mounting with every minute.

DEAD IN FACTORY

Fire engines and ambulances rolled swiftly across the city to bring aid to the wounded and halt the progress of the fires.

Inside a factory set afire, it was reported, there were dead and wounded workers.

In one street a bomb ripped a hole 35 feet deep and 40 feet in diameter.

Five hundred inmates of an old people's home fled at the first signal into air raid shelters A bomb fell only 25 feet behind the institution's chapel.

Along the Seine windows were broken from the ground floor up to a height of seven stories.

PAST HISTORIC SPOTS

Climbing high to get out of range of the barking anti-aircraft guns, the German planes moved in fearsome parade over the center of the old city past Notre Dame, the Eiffel Tower, Church of the Madeleine and other historic places known to American tourists.

Paris has a normal peace-time population of 2,830,000, but now thousands of was refugees crowd the city from nearly all European countries.—Editor's note.

U. S. INFANT BOMBED

The first bombs sent up clouds of dirt and smoke, and for an hour Parisians and fugitives from the war zone huddled in their shelters.

In one place four persons were wounded, none seriously. They were treated at a hospital which lay int he line of the bombers' flight.

A patient in the hospital was Mrs. Maurice Dalva, an American, of 20 West 58th st., New York, who gave birth yesterday to a baby girl. She and the baby were unhurt.

330,000 Captured Nazis Claim

BERLIN, June 3 (AP)—The capture of 330,000 British and French prisoners "in the course of the big destructive battle of Artois and Flanders" was reported today by the German high command. Its communique said this count was "preliminary."

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP) — A British broadcasting corporation announcement in German, heard here by NBC, said an entire German division had been wiped out by French forces near Rethel during a German assault on French positions. The report did not say when the fight occurred.

In a report from Paris, an NBC correspondent said French sources had declared Germany's losses in Flanders in the last 23 days totaled 600,000 men, three-fifths of the Nazi tanks and 2000 of their first line planes.

LONDON, June 3 (INS)—German airplane losses since May 20 total between 2500 and 2700 machines, authoritative British circles estimated today. Five hundred others are believed to have been damaged seriously, these quarters said. One-third of the planes lost were bombers, they claimed.

French Adviser Flying to F.D.R.

PARIS, June 3 (AP) — Count Rene de Chambrun, just returned from the battle of Flanders, was reported to be flying to Washington today to inform President Roosevelt on French military operations.

He retreated with the British to Dunkirk and was hurried to London with the first Allied troops to be taken from northern France so as to go to Washington as assistant military attache in the French embassy.

Relatives said he took a clipper plane from Lisbon last night.

Churchill Will Speak Tomorrow

LONDON, June 3 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill is scheduled to make a statement in the House of Commons tomorrow (about 11 a. m., E. D. T.) on the withdrawal of the British Expeditionary Force from Flanders.

Gayety Film Reveals Vice

A New York vice investigation that was front-page news for months suggested "Gambling for Souls," the for-adults-only film melodrama opening today on the Gayety screen.

Bryant Washburn, favorite silent screen star, is co-starred with Martha Chapin in this story of a young wife whose love of luxury takes her from a protected home-life into the underworld dens.

The film purposes to show how insidiously these crime merchants work on human frailty. The attractive young matron's first introduction into this unsavory world was casual enough. With an acquaintance she had met at the bridge-club, she had gone to a luxuriously furnished gambling club with all the swank accessories of bar, floor-show, etc.

She's lucky at cards and hopes to win a lot of money. The other girl is a come-on for the club and gives the signal to let Martha win. She wins but she loses when she is introduced to "Million Dollar" Taylor, henchman of the proprietor.

The latter takes her on a merry-go-round tour of the underworld and she is obliged to shoot her way out.

Supporting the co-stars are Florence Dudley, Wheeler Oakman, Robert Fraser, Ed Keane, Vera Steadman, Gaston Glass, Gay Sheridan and Janet Eastman.

Pops Program

Leon Tumarkin will be the soloist at the Pop concert in Symphony Hall tonight, appearing in Tchaikovsky's First Pianoforte Concerto. Arthur Fiedler announces the following program:

Polonaise Militaire — Chopin-Glazounov
Overture to "Euryanthe" — Weber
Suite Caucasian [illegible]
[illegible] — W. Kempe
Rose of the [illegible] — [illegible]
Piano Concerto No. 1 in B flat minor — Tchaikovsky
Soloist: Leon Tumarkin
"Wine, Woman and Song" Waltzes — Strauss
Prelude in C sharp minor — Rachmaninoff
Torch Dance from "Henry VIII" — German

FLORENCE DUDLEY plays one of the featured roles in "Gambling With Souls," the screen melodrama now at the Gayety.

Hinda Wassau Howard Star

Hinda Wassau, burlesque queen whose dancing and dimensions are equally diverting, is the Old Howard's come-hither attraction this week in the burlesque revue, "Yankee Doodle."

Hinda Wassau

Heading her supporting company are Ceil Von Dell, night-club and burlesque favorite, Vickie Welles, who has the attention-getting quality of Orson but is beautiful, Isobel Brown who is known on the West Coast as the "radium" dancer, and many other charmers.

Fred Binder and Jack Rosen, held over another week have arranged a new comic routine. Harry Conley, the original Elmer, is back again with more nonsense. Then, there are pretty Pat Paige, James X. Francis, Flash and Sadia, colored dance team, the Emerald Sisters, Mae and Loretta Monford, Conny Ryan, Lou Lane and the Creighton Trio. The chorus ensemble of 30 has been equipped with new songs and costumes.

On the screen are "They Made Me a Criminal," with John Garfield, Ann Sheridan and the "Dead Enders," and "Law of the Pampas," with William Boyd.

Marlene's Dance Big Globe Hit

There must be something in a name after all, for burlesque's Marlene appears to affect the Globe's press department the same way the screen's Marlene does Hollywood's most blase publicity experts.

You gather that marvelous is the word for her, too, and that her "modern Lady Godiva" dance creation is something that should not be missed.

Holding her own with the dazzling Marlene this week is Lillian Harrison, whose Soamafric Zombie dance is said to parallel the Godiva number in daring. Miss Harrison has made such a hit with the Globe patrons she has been held over a second week.

Making it a quartet of queens are Clara Scott, who found much favor with Porto Rican audiences not so long ago, and Lovesa Leigh, who manages to leap in the course of her dancing and still be languorous about it.

As a background for all this pulchritude, the 30 Bernardolls are no wall-flowers.

On the funny side are Mandy "Hit the Road" Kay, Harry Ryan, Irving Benson and Milton Frome. Vaudeville's contribution includes the Six Men of Melody with June Starr, the Dashing Doherty Dancers and "Midnight Intrude."

Gene Tunney in Film At South Station

Gene Tunney, the ring's brainy heavyweight champion, gives his celebrated mentality an airing in the latest in the "Information Please" series, now showing on South Station screen, and manages to hold his own with John Kieran, F. P. Adams, Oscar Levant and Clifton Fadiman.

PIERSON TO DIRECT

Arthur Pierson has been engaged as director of the North Shore Players at Marblehead this summer. Ambrose Costello again will act as stage manager.

Players' Club Stages Revival

After an interval of four years, The Players Club will resume its annual custom of staging a revival tonight when it presents Congreve's "Love for Love," with an all-star cast for one week only at its Manhattan clubhouse.

The brilliant cast includes Dudley Digges, Romney Brent, Peggy Wood, Bobby Clark, Dorothy Gish, Leo Carroll, Edgar Stehli (who played it in 1925), Violet Heming and A. G. Andrews.

The New York Times' Brooks Atkinson describes this Restoration comedy of manners as "a dullish piece of obscenity involving tiresome characters."

"Boston After Dark," by George Holland, appears every day in the Boston American.

Hollywood Notes

By Harriet Parsons

Pinch-Hitting for Louella O. Parsons, who is on vacation

HOLLYWOOD, June 3—Seems a trifle early to be announcing football yarns, but maybe Paramount wants to make sure of being the first this season to come forth with a gridiron epic.

Anyway they'll produce a little number called "Touchdown" (what, again?), and Wayne Morris has been borrowed from Warners for the starring role. I should say both starring roles since Wayne will play two brothers, one studious, the other athletic. He'll also have two leading ladies, Virginia Dale and Lillian Cornell, who played Ellen Drew's sisters in "Buck Benny Rides Again." Anthony Veiller will start production in July.

From LOP in Honolulu:

Surprised to Virginia Dale learn that Rex Ingram is living here and writing a book. Alice Terry has been here with him but has now returned to the states. Visited the Waikiki Theater, new since we were here, and the manager told me "Gone With the Wind" has made Vivien Leigh extremely popular with the Islanders. Speaking of popularity, Irene Dunne made scores of friends. Everywhere they speak of her as the lovely lady.

Dorothy Lamour won great favor and so did Bette Davis. Andrea Leeds thanked every one of the fans with a gracious letter and I have heard her praises sung, too. My advice to Ginger Rogers is to come back here and never again pull the stunt she did when she landed and stepped off the ship in a dark wig. The social set here left her absolutely alone and the fans didn't even ask for autographs.

Honolulu fans are very well behaved and expect to be treated equally well themselves. Thousands of them resented Ginger's attitude. Hawaii is a gracious spot and deserves graciousness from those who come here.

U. S. Refugee Ship Heads for New York

GALWAY, Ireland, June 3 (AP)—The United States liner President Roosevelt, emblazoned with the Stars and Stripes, was headed for New York today with a passenger list of American war refugees that strained her accommodations to capacity.

A formal check showed that 720 passengers were aboard, the American embassy in London announced.

Shipping officials cut a lot of red tape to allow 10-year-old Peter Daffy aboard as the last passenger. Peter traveled alone to join his father in Gary, Ind. His mother died recently in England.

Since Peter had a British passport there was some doubt at first whether he would be allowed on the ship.

The passengers wore life preservers when the liner, her departure delayed while she took on 300 tons of water, finally pulled out of this west coast port last night.

An International News Service dispatch said the German government sent a formal note to Alexander Kirk, United States charge d'affaires, promising to comply with a formal request that the liner Washington be granted safe passage across the Atlantic. The Washington is en route to the United States from Genoa, Italy. A similar undertaking has been given for the President Roosevelt. — Editor's note.

Seek New Suspect In Allyn Slaying

WESTFIELD, June 3—A second man, described as poorly-dressed and with a foreign accept, was sought by officials in the Allyn murder case today after a tip from a prominent Reading clubwoman.

The man, about 45 years of age, five feet nine inches tall and wearing a hat set back on his head, was ejected by Prof. Lewis B. Allyn from the latter's home five weeks before he was mysteriously shot to death, police were told.

The information was contained in a letter from Mrs. Gene Williams of Reading to Mrs. Allen H. King, wife of the local Y. M. C. A. head, according to Dist. Atty. Thomas F. Moriarty.

VEIL OF SECRECY

Some secrecy was thrown around the new development by investigators who still are seeking a tall, well-dressed, gray-haired man who mysteriously boarded a train here on the night of the murder and disappeared after getting off at Pittsfield, 50 miles away.

But it was learned that Mrs Williams made a secret trip to this city, after her letter was turned over to officials, and helped them in a reconstruction of happenings at the Allyn house on the night of the stranger's intrusion.

Mrs. Williams, who had been attending a Y. M. C. A. convention, was a guest at the Allyn home, and saw the stranger, it was said. The professor later was so upset that he excused himself from the parlor after ejecting the visitor, police were told.

PASSED DOOR

Mrs. Allyn was upstairs at the time, according to Mrs. Williams, and did not know of the incident Neither was she able to say who the intruder might have been.

Mrs. Williams said she and the professor were chatting in the parlor about 10 o'clock that night when the intruder passed across the threshold of the front vestibule before the professor reached the second door of the home.

"When he saw the professor, he said something in a loud voice and in foreign accents, it seemed to me, but as he glanced across the room and saw me, he lowered his voice and head."

Mrs. Williams wrote Mrs. King of the incident shortly after Allyn was slain at his home. Mrs. King, after consulting the widow, turned the letter over to Dist. Atty. Moriarty

Love Slayer's Victim Buried

Watertown police and Middlesex County authorities today interrupted their investigation of the slaying of Katherine C. Nauer, 17, while her funeral was conducted in Brighton.

A requiem mass was solemnized at St. Columbkille's Church following services at Miss Nauer's home in Dustin st. Burial was in Mount Benedict Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Afterwards, relatives of the girl were questioned by police concerning her friendship with Frank W. Gomez, 23, of Orkney rd., Brighton, held for her murder. He continued to maintain silence at Psychopathic Hospital.

He was quoted by Brighton police as having confessed he stabbed the girl because she refused to marry him. Her bruised and lacerated body was found in his flaming auto.

Councillors Campaign For South Boston Gym

City Councillors Thomas E. Linehan and Joseph M. Scannell today led a campaign for a new South Boston gymnasium, following a mass meeting in the Peninsula district

Both councilors, speakers at a meeting in the Municipal building, declared they would seek city council approval for erection of a gymnasium with money from the George Robert White fund

BOSTON and Massachusetts, often called the "Workshop of the Nation," can be trusted to live up to the name and reputation as America arms for defense.

We may be small in area, particularly so in comparison with States like California and Texas.

We may lack many of the mineral resources of the West and Southwest.

But when it comes to supplying the finished products that an efficient Army, Navy and Air Force must have, we are unequalled and never surpassed.

OUR NATIONAL GUARDSMEN CHECK EQUIPMENT
Massachusetts Mills Can Supply Everything They Need

This is not an idle boast or a dream born of wishful thinking. It is an accurate STATEMENT OF FACT.

Only a few months ago the Federal Government, seriously considering an industrial mobilization plan, listed 10,340 factories in the country that would be capable of handling specific war orders.

Seven hundred and sixty-four of those plants are in Massachusetts. And one hundred and thirty-two in Boston alone!

We make the world's finest woolens and worsteds, tools, machinery of all sorts, shoes, wire, rubber tires, cotton fabrics, insignia, radio devices, chemicals and ammunition.

Moreover, we have thousands of feet of vacant factory space that can be readily utilized for the manufacture of airplanes, tanks and other necessary military equipment.

No other section of the country has a more abundant supply of skilled labor or a better relationship between industry and scientific research.

Today, unlike the situation a quarter of a century ago, manufacturers will not have to rush to Washington and clamor to be of service.

The Army and Navy already know what Boston and Massachusetts can do.

SAFETY LANES for pedestrians are still conspicuously absent at many Boston street intersections and highway crossings.

Though Mayor Tobin has promised ninety miles of broad white bands in the city's hazardous traffic areas, little has been done and very much remains to be done.

Perhaps the delay is excusable. Perhaps officials charged with the responsibility of making thoroughfares safe for those who walk can explain the apparent lack of progress.

But alibis will not prevent accidents, or restore life after accidents occur.

Better by far and a thousand times more sensible would be a conscientious and concerted effort to provide safety lanes at all important intersections NOW.

A SEAPLANE BASE for Boston Harbor is very probable, Congressmen Flaherty and McCormack assure us.

Earlier this year, the proposed base received Congressional approval.

But, because it was encumbered by numerous other projects, the President opposed and eventually vetoed it.

Stripped of its pork-barrel liabilities, the bill seeking an appropriation of $2,300,000 for the base seems likely to receive both legislative and executive approval within the next two weeks.

This is good news. Boston is the nearest American city to embattled Europe. An airplane, whether embarked on a trans-Atlantic flight of peace or war, reaches our metropolis FIRST.

Consequently the base would be an important addition to the nation's defense program, as well as a progressive step forward in the development of commercial flying.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- -:- MY DAY

NEW YORK CITY, June 8—There are times when I regret not being able to write you on Saturdays because, now and then, there is much more that happens in two days than I can possibly tell you.

Saturday morning I went out to the World's Fair to open the fashion building. Mr. Irving Scott has been most successful architecturally and the color scheme inside and exhibitions are charming.

After leaving the fashion building, I went over to the opening of the American Common. The most moving part of the ceremony was a procession of little girls of all the nationalities which make up our great country, who placed flowers in a little Indian girl's basket, acknowledging thereby the fact that she was the one whose race originally owned this country.

The costumes of all the different nationalities made a brilliant picture and I wish I could have remained to see the folk dances which were given.

From the Fair I went to the Persian art exhibit at 51st st. and Fifth ave. It is impossible to describe to you what it is like. If you have not seen it, I can only urge you to go at once. Everything is so beautiful that you can spend hours in any one of the rooms.

The important thing is the realization that here is an art which has survived through 6000 years of invasion, war, tyranny, prosperity and power. Here is the real proof that the spirit as expressed through the arts transcends all material things.

SOUNDS PLEA FOR BOYS LEAVING REFORMATORIES
"I hope this work can grow," declares Mrs. Roosevelt.

These priceless treasures from the Iranian civilization are gathered from collections all over this country and may never again be seen by the public, so do not miss this opportunity

I tore myself away from this exhibition to go to a tea given in order to tell a group of people about the work done to help boys when they come out of our New York state reformatories to find a job and get a new start in life.

I hope this work can grow for many, many boys could be helped if there was an interest on the part of the public which would make expansion possible.

And now I come to an evening which was an experience I shall never forget. Robert Sherwood has written a remarkable play in: "There Shall Be No Night." Of course, Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne give a performance so perfect that I felt I was living in this portrayal on the stage.

The rest of the cast is so good that we finished the evening feeling that we had actually been through every experience in that Finnish family's existence, which tragically enough, is now part of the life of so many other people.

May God grant that if such dark hours should ever come to us, we may acquit ourselves as well!

MAJOR BOWES introduced the "Amateur Hour" on the radio. How many amateurs introduced on the Major's radio hour afterwards became salary earning professionals? In 1937 seventeen people in the country reported annual incomes of over $300,000. Eleven of these were in the movie industry. Of the eleven $300,000 or over incomes in the movie industry seven were reported by movie executives.

BOSTON After DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

MONDAY MORNING MUSINGS: The prospect of process servers in squad formation at the testimonial dinner Saturday night to Robert Moses "Lefty" Grove was very real today . . . And it is in the conviction that any such added fillip as the constabulary being present in numbers would prove an additional attraction—that we present what we know about the situation in factual form . Certainly no one who admires the great pitcher with the depth of this department would make a move which might be harmful to the affair's huge success.

THE SITUATION DOES NOT REVOLVE around Mr. Grove at all . . . He happens merely to be the guest of honor at a function where his big boss, Tom Yawkey, his other bosses, Eddie Collins and Joe Cronin, and the entire executive staff of the Boston Red Sox will be within reach of the process servers in a group . All these gentlemen, according to a Boston lawyer of wide repute, are to be subpoenaed to court . . They are presumptive witnesses in an action against the Boston American Baseball Club for six times one dollar and sixty-five cents, the Boston lawyer says.

THE CAUSE CELEBRE IS TO BE BASED on that ball game of Sunday a week ago, when the Red Sox and the Yankees battled it out in a slippery contest at Fenway Park while a nor'easter whistled through the stands . Or so the fuming lawyer promises . . . You remember that approximately 15,000 fans attended that ball game and that twice that number were supposed to have purchased tickets . . . The lawyer was one of the ticket-purchasers who did not see the ball game . . He says he has a cause of action . . And that the Messrs Yawkey et al, in declining to make a refund on six tickets the lawyer purchased for himself and a party of friends, the Sox management is dilatory, or negligent, or whatever the appropriate legal term may be.

ANYHOO, THE LAWYER IS GOING to sue "I have already prepared a list of half of more than 200 questions we shall ask Mr. Yawkey to answer," declared the Boston attorney in an opening speech, in the presence of several other fans, to this correspondent between games at the Fens . . . "That should keep him fairly busy in court for some time at the rate of 70 cents a day" . . . (He was chortling at the notion of engaging Mr Yawkey's valuable time at such a rate) . . . Then the idea of catching up with the Sox bosses at the Grove dinner came up . . . We had a question to ask about the legality of invoking the "sunset clause" (whereby a process server can do his work after sundown), in such a minor matter as serving the papers on a witness in a civil case . . . But the umpire called: "Play Ball!" for the second game and our vituperative friend actually broke into a sprint to reach his seat.

BETTE DAVIS TO PLAY 'CALAMITY JANE'

By Harriet Parsons

Bette Davis

Pinch-Hitting for Louella O. Parsons, Who Is on Vacation

HOLLYWOOD, June 3 Bette Davis has a yen to play "Calamity Jane," the hard ridin', sharpshootin' lady wildcat of Wild West days and because Bette's bosses, Jack Warner and Hal Wallis, like to keep her happy (and also because they know the role's a natural for her) they've selected the story of Calamity Jane for the next Davis vehicle to follow "The Letter." Jerry Wald and Richard MacAuley wrote the screen play and it was their script which got Bette all steamed up to play Calamity

La Davis won't be the first to portray the rough, tough pioneer gal Jean Arthur played her in "The Plainsman," but in that film Calamity's story was only incidental. In the Warner epic it will be the whole works. And by the way, what's causing this attack of Westernitis which seems to have bit all our glamour gals? It's attaining the epidemic proportions of the screwball comedy cycle which swept the town four years ago.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

"WHAT if you did lose your job, Helen," and Mr. Stone leaned back in his easy chair, "go out and get another one."

"That's easy enough for you to say, Pa," retorted Helen, "but jobs don't grow on every bush."

"Of course they don't," and Mr. Stone blew a smoke ring toward the ceiling. "You have to go out and hustle to get one."

"Hustle and get one," snapped Helen. "That sounds fine when you haven't worked for years."

"Now don't go starting that all over again," and Mr. Stone shut his jaws together with a snap. "You know very well I haven't been well for years. You don't realize how I've suffered."

HELEN'S EYES flashed. "And you don't realize how I've slaved to make a living for us, while all the other girls have been having a good time."

"You'll have plenty of time to enjoy yourself after I'm gone. You'll be sorry then. I should think you'd want my last few years to be peaceful."

"They've been peaceful enough since I got my first job," Helen snapped. "You've had nothing to do but sit by the fire and read and smoke. All the work and worry have been turned over to me."

"I've always told you not to worry. It's the worst thing you can do. Worry kills more people than anything else."

"If that's so you should live to be a hundred," retorted Helen sharply.

"Enough of that! The young people of today have no respect for their elders. Times change, but they change for the worse," sighed Mr. Stone.

"The worst!" exclaimed Helen. "That's what you're always talking about."

"Helen," said her father severely, "that's enough. I forbid you to talk to me that way. You just go out and get a job."

HOURS LATER, Mr. Stone awakened as Helen entered.

"What luck, Helen? Did you get the job?"

"I did."

"Good girl, Helen. I knew you would. When do you start?"

Helen stood silent a moment, facing her father squarely. "YOU start tomorrow."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

"WE NEED NOT wonder whether there will be a Nazi invasion—it is already here! Their 'Fifth Column' has penetrated every part of the U. S. A.! So said the F. B. I. recently, when applying for additional funds to cope with the enormous influx of German spies, saboteurs and propagandists

Just in case you're unfamiliar with the unique Nazi viewpoint, I'm quoting again from that amazing little book, "LUNACY BECOMES US," Clara Leiser's compilation of authentic statements made by Herr Hitler and his intimate circle.

Neither this article—nor Miss Leiser's book—is an indictment of the German people in general, particularly those fine citizens of German descent to whom America owes so much. But as a close-up of the Gas House Gang who've seized control, it may prove useful—if any of Adolf's Advance Guard start working on you.

So you think the Nazi army has been roughing folks up? Listen and learn how wrong you are!

"No European nation has done more for peace than Germany. No nation has made greater sacrifice . . . Upon whom did we inflict a single injury in these four years, or from whom have we taken his possessions?"—Adolf Hitler, 1938.

"Upon the path of our movement there lies not a single one of our opponents murdered by us, not one attempt on the life of our enemies has been made. From the first day, to the present, we have refused to use such outrageous methods. Never have we fought with such weapons."—Adolf Hitler, at the bier of his Swiss agent Gustloff

"There can only be one yardstick for our conduct, our great unshakeable love for peace!"—Adolf Hitler, 1935

OH YEAH! Surely, this can't be the same little boy who had written "Mein Kampf" some years previously!

But even as Amiable Adolf was protesting "our unshakeable love of peace" in 1935, General Erich von Ludendorff was making a statement which should shriek its siren warning in every American's mind today

"IT MUST NOT BE FORGOTTEN THAT IT WILL BE IMPORTANT NOT, ONLY TO BEST THE ENEMY'S ARMY, BUT TO DESTROY THE ENTIRE NATION WITH WHICH WE ARE AT WAR."—General Erich von Ludendorff, from "The Total War," 1935

Nazi policies and program. How would it seem to have American churches "suppressed" . . . American citizens cringing under "protective custody"?

'Touch Away' All Signs Of Grey Hair

By ARLINE GOULD

IT ISN'T gilding the lily . . . or going under false colors . . . to disclaim the place of grey hair in your scheme of things . . . and with a few swift strokes to disguise it completely . . . it's plain common sense, and a just due to your unquenchable feeling of youth!

It is a matter between you and your bathroom mirror . . . and it may easily remain so private an affair . . . if you use a brand new "liquid touch" which isn't a dye or not a bleach, but a dependable disguise for streaky, grey, or fading hair! It is absolutely harmless, you may be sure.

So new is it, that when you examine the "liquid touch" for yourself it will have just come out of the wrappings . . . and a find we consider it!

For 50c you can get a small, square bottle that has any number of re-touches in it. It's equipped with a short, stubby applicator that is very easy to handle, the end of which is a porous rubber "swab."

Just hold a small strand of hair away from the head, and run the applicator lightly along it's length . . . be sure to press the applicator against the bottle neck to remove excess liquid. You don't need much.

There is a surprising range of colors in "liquid touch." There is black, dark brown, medium brown, light brown and auburn, blonde and golden blonde.

If you'd like to learn about this unusual newcomer, a "liquid touch" that disguises grey hair, streaks, or faded hair . . . giving it the soft, gleaming look of youth . . 50 cents for a generous bottle with applicator . . . phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days except Saturday, or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

WHAT would her Scarlett O'Hara . . . her Juliet . . . be to her adoring public if Vivien Leigh's hair were streaked with grey? Just as a screen actress owes it to her public to allow no sign of fading or grey in her beautiful hair . . . so you owe it to your family and your friends, if grey hair would make you unhappy, to disguise it . . . and you can do it so very easily with the amazing "liquid touch" which Arline Gould has discovered!

Here's a Different Navy

By ANNICE BRINK

IF YOU'RE almost too-dazzled by the lush tropical colors that fashion is summoning for sportswear . . . stop a minute to consider another idea, which seems to be finding favor in Boston. It's as cool and fresh as a wave cap tumbling over a yacht's bow. And smart as the yacht's captain.

Because it is navy blue accent for white. But a different navy than we usually know. It is the true, almost-black navy that the tars themselves wear, not the lighter shade the styles usually stress.

It's as thick a dark color as the texture of a pea-coat . . . and it's wonderful with pure white.

First inkling of the idea came when we saw a white sports frock topped by a swagger cardigan of dark navy blue tweed . . . and polished gold buttons! Another smart tweed pairing on the same idea is a short swagger box jacket, with pearl buttons, white as a sailor's wash.

And then the idea was further carried out in an intriguing three-piece play suit. It starts off with a tailored striped blouse, navy and white . . . It has a flared skirt of wide-patterned novelty waffle pique, piped all around the hem with navy blue. And cutest of all are the tailored shorts of the same novelty pique, and bound on the pants leg edges with navy blue!

Eat Greens for Vitamins

By MARTHA LEE

WHEN the average person hears the word greens he usually thinks first of spinach. And spinach is a good leafy vegetable. But scientists say other greens are quite as good. Beet tops, chard, dandelion greens, turnip tops, and watercress are often richer than spinach both in calcium and in iron, and quite as good for the vitamins.

In shopping for any of the leafy vegetables of course, you look for fresh, young, green, tender leaves. If leaves are very dirty, or are dry, or yellow or have coarse stems, look for a better buy. Such leaves probably will not be palatable or nutritious and will mean considerable waste.

BUYING GREENS

When you're buying lettuce give the head a little hand pressure to find how firm it is. And look for signs of tip-burn, the [illegible] tan brown edges on the leaves particularly in the innermost parts of the head. They would have to be trimmed off and so mean waste. They are caused by unfavorable growing conditions and may later become slimy areas and then of course you have decay and an unusable head.

In shopping for broccoli try to [illegible] if the stems are tender and firm. See that the buds in the heads are compact and that [illegible] opened enough to show the fair yellow or purple color of the blossom. Wilted or flabby stalks are [illegible] and often tough.

COOKING AND SERVING GREEN VEGETABLES

As to serving green vegetables many of them can be eaten raw as well as cooked. And that goes for [illegible], as well as for the dandelions and cress. Whoever has never tasted spinach in any form except cooked, might try its tender leaves served just like lettuce [illegible] with a good salad dressing.

Though even the most careful cooking results in some nutritive loss, much of the minerals and vitamins may be conserved. Heat is an enemy both of color and of vitamin C; so greens should be subjected to it for as short a time as possible. And since some of the minerals [illegible] are easily dissolved in the water, the leaves should be cooked in only enough water to prevent scorching. With spinach, just the water that is left on the leaves after they are washed will be sufficient.

CUTTING COOKING TIME

To cut down on cooking time and thus save more nutrients, it's a good idea to snip off the stems of spinach and discard them if they're tough, or if they're not start cooking them before adding the leaves. With chard you might use your kitchen scissors to advantage, cutting the midrib out and giving it a few minutes head start of the thinner part of the leaf.

To speed the cooking of broccoli, discard the woody ends, and split the stalks into lengthwise quarters so that each one will have a tuft of the buds.

If you add vinegar or lemon juice to your greens, do so after cooking them. It's that old feud between the acids and a green coloring again. They soon turn the cheerful green of the leaves to a drab olive cast. You might mix the vinegar in just before you bring the dish to the table. Or better yet, just pass the vinegar cruet and let everyone at the table use as much or as little as he pleases.

Butter gives a pleasing flavor to any dish of greens, say about 1½ tablespoons of it for each two-cup quantity. Or bacon fat with bits of crisp bacon.

Whatever your pet way of preparing greens, by all means get them into the menu somehow. In the spring wild varieties are so easily available and cultivated kinds so reasonable that one can fairly revel in them.

Farm Helped This Family

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"Perhaps my experience as a vegetable gardener may help some woman confronted as I was with the problem of rearing three fatherless children. When my husband died, we had a rundown farm which had not been worked or fertilized for several years.

"I interviewed several nearby boarding-house keepers, and they agreed to take my vegetables if they were attractive looking and not too expensive.

"I tried to have a few specialties that other people didn't have, such as white "snowball" tomatoes, supposed to have less acid than the ordinary varieties.

"I tried a new wrinkle with my vegetable raising. I borrowed cookbooks from our nearby public library, copied ways of cooking vegetables in the most appetizing and novel fashion. I wrote out the recipes on my old typewriter, and these I turned in to the housekeepers who bought my vegetables.

"My children picked blackberries, and I gave them recipes for blackberry roly poly and oldfashioned blackberry pudding, made by lining the dish with buttered slices of bread, etc. I believe the country name is blackberry fool.

"We didn't become millionaires, but we made enough to get by on. Nine hundred and twenty-seven dollars to be exact, and as we were out little besides taxes, clothing and food apart from what we raised, we managed to get by.

"My son, aged 13, delivered the vegetables in a little express wagon.

"If that mother, who's thinking of giving up her children, will think as hard as I did about ways and means of keeping the family together, I think she'll win out.

"HUSTLING MOTHER."

Manners

Dinner Dance Pointers

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have been invited to attend a formal dinner dance.

1—When I am introduced to the chaperon or persons in the receiving line, what should I reply?

2—Do I leave my escort as soon as I enter the hotel and retire to the ladies lounge to tidy up?

3—What should I talk about, when in a group, that would be of interest to everybody? D. Z.

You acknowledge an introduction to a patroness or chaperon just as you would acknowledge any other introduction—by a gracious "How do you do," adding the name if you are sure you have caught it correctly.

When you and your escort enter the hotel, arrange with him where you and he are to meet after you've gone to remove your wrap and he's gone to check his coat and hat. You meet at the appointed place—probably near the entrance to the dance room, and go together at once to greet the members of the receiving-line.

If you begin to chat about the obvious things first — the good music, the decorations perhaps, it will be easy to get the conversational ball rolling. After that, be guided by the conversational topics as they arise.

ELSIE ROBINSON writes the woman's viewpoint, discusses everyday affairs and problems, regularly in the Boston American.

Feed Your Shrubs

By T. W. LEGGETT

Shrubs once planted are too generally left to themselves forever thereafter, particularly in regard to the matter of fertilization. A vigorously growing shrub takes nourishment from the soil and exhausts the soil's fertility.

Then the shrub becomes weakened and is less able to survive the attacks of insects and disease.

Where manure is obtainable at a reasonable price, either from the horse or cow stable, give shrubs a dressing, being careful not to injure the roots. Then when growth starts a good, high-analysis chemical fertilizer can be used as a top dressing in a wide circle around each subject. Work the dressing into the surface soil with an iron rake.

In dry weather shrubs will be benefited by an occasional soaking of the soil with water. Lilacs, Althea, Buddleia, Calicarpa, Deutzia, Forsythia, Hydrangea, Kolkwitzia, Honeysuckle, Magnolia, Mock Orange, Kerria, Spirea, Snowberry and Weigela are some of the commonly "planted and neglected" shrubs.

JASON TOBIAS' BAND SHINES AT FOX AND HOUNDS

Latin Quarter's New Show Sparkling Hit

By SAM BERENSON

No closing date has yet been forthcoming on the gaily continental Latin Quarter, which means that gadabouts will be able to enjoy the breath-taking beauty at this delightful salon for an indefinite period.

Lou, however, has polished up the colorful Latin Quarter-at-Silver Beach, West Falmouth, where the Parisian Buffet opens on the 15th . . . with the Main Dining Room flung open on the 29th . . . The best-selling "With the Wind and the Rain in Your Hair" isn't quite as much a 1940 debutante as you may think . . . this ditty first came to light as a ballad back in 1930, but it has taken a bit of fancying to make it the present sockeroo . . Recommended diversion: bending an ear to "Clarinet Marmalade," as smeared on by the Bobby Hackett swingsters . . . The Grille Room at the Hotel Essex continues to play host to a brisk bit of the after-dark trade . . . the stay-up set has long since discovered that a mighty attractive floor offering is always on tap at this whirly-girly spot . . . and Summer finds no let-down here in the speed at which the turnstiles click . . . Likewise does the popular Steuben's Vienna Room retain its high-ranking favor among the stay-up-lates.

The amazing success of Monte Proser's Beachcomber has not been dimmed with the weeks, and this tropical oasis has added even further to the laurels won on its opening . . . the South Seas atmosphere carries with it a potent punch, for Boston returns again and again . . . two bands and three floor shows nightly . . . Ribbys continues to gather new friends, for Summer means no relaxing in the rapid pace of the entertainment here . . . Dorgan's Old Harbor House is featuring some mighty nice talent these evenings . . . with Hugie Russell's gang on the down-beat.

The Cocoanut Grove, after parlaying Brass Monkey, "Babe" Rubenstein, and a celebrity-jammed house into one of the most talked about soirees ever held along Rialto ave., comes right back tonight in another of a series of bang-up offerings . . . name talent and doll-line loveliness, all cast in a gay and colorful setting . . . Mickey Alpert will be honored Thursday night, which marks his 1st anniversary at the Grove . . . another celebration same place and evening will be for John Carr, Jr., of Medford who is having a birthday . . . his pop the Mayor and Mom with many friends will be there . . . Enric Madriguera and his band move into the Ritz roof tomorrow evening

The Lawrence Hofbrau is practically tilt-nosed over its new streamlining . . but host Wagenbach avers that the Hofbrau's famed policy of superior entertainment at a minimum remains unshaken . . . Down at Cohasset Harbor is the beautiful new "Lighthouse," where the lamp is constantly kept beckoning by host Hugo whose famed cuisine razzle-dazzlery has already established the Lighthouse of prime importance among diners-out . . . Guy Ormandy's band . . . At Wrentham's Weber Duck Inn are the twin lures of tasty dinners and luncheons and the slick rhythm-serving of Howard Jacobs' orchestra. . . . The Barclay in West Falmouth, has already flung wide its doors for the season, and here Bob MacLeod holds sway for the dance-minded . . . While a ten-minute drive past Norumbega Park brings one to the Mansion Inn, a salon not only long noted for its excellent dinners, but currently featuring the able tune-tossing of the Larry Cooper ensemble . . . And definitely . . . but definitely . . . on the down-beat side is the Hampton Beach Casino, that gay ocean-side dancery

Blinstrub's Village over in South Boston, will carry on for the summer season with no let down in talent . . . top-billing this week goes to the Mia Miles Foursome . . . others on the gala bill are the Cooks, George Moore, Boyd Heathen . . . Mr. and Mrs. Jack Brown celebrate their 25th anniversary at the Casa Manana on the 25th . . . and, thinks we, they couldn't have selected a gayer spot for their Silver Wedding Day.

MAE BROWN
Crawford House

The Club Mayfair is restlessly awaiting a cloudless sky so that it can again show off its sliding roof . . . but rain or shine, sparkling floor shows continue to beckon to many of the smarter set . . . Eddie Davis will keep the Fox & Hounds open for the summer . . . Ruby Foo's Den still the ranking suey shop of the Village, if one is to judge by nightly throngs . . . The Sheraton garret has found that the [illegible] of the grand music-making of Johnny Cole's band . . . and topped off with an exceptionally smart floor revue . . . are attractions that the p. m. fans are not withstanding . . . business has been amazing here . . . While the newly opened Roof at the Hotel Westminster, made merry by the torrid rhythm of the Jimmy McHale pied pipers, has already become one of the more popular of the town's gathering places . . . Songstress Muriel Daniels who broke all known records at the Westminster last season returns for another engagement . . . many of her friends will be atop the roof garden this evening to give her a nice hand of applause . . . Miami Grove and Hi-Hat anniversary parties were mighty successful soirees.

Some biggies may complain about the weather, but Izzy (Hurry-cane) Ort explains that it's only a summer monsoon . . . 'Twould appear that Izzy can't shake off the exotic atmosphere of his El Tropico room . . . where business is truly too good for a South Sea isle . . . [illegible] applause for the excellent floor revues that his spot has been featuring . . . while [illegible] is always on hand for any possible serving . . . Mae Brown, [illegible] tsk-tsker currently engaged in [illegible] the lads from the rafters at the Crawford House, is proving one of the most successful headliners ever presented here . . . ye olde Crawford is jammed nightly.

Maine Widow Gets Seat in Congress

PORTLAND, Me., June 2—Voters went to the polls today to elect a congressman—but there was no need to count the votes.

Elected was Mrs. Margaret Chase Smith, widow of Rep. Clyde Smith and Maine's first congresswoman. Unopposed, she will fill out the unexpired term of her husband. While Democrats did not contest in the special election, they indicated they would enter the June 17 primary in a quest for the regular term.

Boston After Dark

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: There's an honest-to-goodness Bette Davis romance on the griddle these days, and unless it culminates in one of those Yuma elopements, the hills of old New Hampshire may see a bridal party before the summer ends . . . The Newton-Lowell?? movie actress bought a place in New Hampshire last summer . . . (More soon) . . . Mrs. Huntington R. Hardwick's famous yacht, "The Arcadia," has been transferred to the Canadian government . . . The yacht was a bequest to Mrs. Hardwick from her father, Galen Stone, the famous Boston financier . . . The first Boston night club which advertises: "No rhumba, no conga, no cover, no Spanish dancers!" just barely might be in tune with a large sector of the check-paying public . . . Or, as is more likely, your old-fashioned correspondent who wishfully thought the "swing craze" out of business is behind the trend again.

DEATHS

GUILLERMO HALL, professor emeritus of social science at Boston University, whose frank comments on romance and marriage attracted nation-wide attention. Prof. Hall, 79, who was associated with Herbert Hoover in food administration work during the World War, once advised his students to marry a girl who is a perfect 36. Prof. Hall, in 1932 at the age of 71, married his former secretary, Miss Helen Nichols, 33.

Another proposal of the professor, who also taught Spanish, was to replace "disagreeable maiden ladies, soured and disillusioned and without a redeeming trait' with teachers who were beauty prize winners. Students would fall in love with the latter, and work all the harder for them, he contended.

Prof. Hall was at one time connected with the Havana branch of Boston University's college of business administration. He was decorated by the King of Belgium for his food administration services.

Before he entered government service in 1903, Leonard was a conductor for the New Haven railroad. He leaves his widow, Delia, and a daughter, Margaret Leonard, Boston school teacher. SERVICES at St. Mary's of the Angel's Church, Wednesday at 9 a. m.

IRA C. TAYLOR, 54, state police fire inspector for more than 20 years, a former Lynn fireman, who had served 11 years in the United States army, died at Northampton. Taylor had served as second lieutenant in the army's training division at Commonwealth Armory before joining the fire marshal's department in 1920. His widow and daughter, Mrs. Marion Abbott, survive. SERVICES from the Ahern Funeral Home in Northampton, Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. with burial in Pinegrove Cemetery, Lynn.

HOW YOU CAN GET A

$100 LOAN

IF YOU CAN PAY BACK $6.41 A MONTH

Do you want to get a cash loan quickly and simply? At Household Finance you can borrow $20 to $300 without endorsers or guarantors, if you can make regular monthly payments. And you needn't even leave your own home to apply for the money you need. You may repay your loan on the installment plan which best fits your own purse.

Choose your own payment plan

Suppose you need $100 and can conveniently repay $9.75 a month. Your installments will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $6.41 a month for twenty months will also repay a $100 loan.

See the sample loans and payment plans in the table. (Loans also made in other amounts and for other periods.) Note that you may make very small payments if you wish. Note also that the sooner you repay, the less your loan costs. Four monthly installments of $26.58 each, or a total of only $106.32, for instance, will repay a $100 loan in full. (Payments shown in the table include all charges.

What you do to borrow

All you do to get a Household Finance loan is to acquaint us with your problem. We require no salary or wage assignment, no stocks or bonds. (Loans are made on furniture, car or note.) No credit inquiries made of friends or relatives. And you don't have to ask friends or fellow-workers to sign the loan papers with you. You get your loan promptly and simply.

Study the loan and payment table. Then come in or telephone most convenient office for full information without obligation.

WE GUARANTEE the total amount figured by using this table to be the full amount you will pay, when payments are made on schedule. You will pay less if you pay your loan ahead of time since you pay charges only for the actual time you have the money. Payments include charges at Household's rate of 2½% per month. Nothing Personal

By Charles J. McGuirk

TWO WEEKS after Ed Holster came to the Three Corners chain store as clerk Lin Mowberry, the store manager, decided he wouldn't do. It wasn't as if there was anything terribly wrong with either Ed or his work. There wasn't.

The Cast of Characters in "Nothing Personal."

ED HOLSTER, about to lose his job in a chain store because he can't "mix" with customers.

LIN MOWBERRY, manager who likes Ed but believes it will be good business to discharge him

Ed was a nice, clean-cut young fellow in his middle twenties. He was tall and slim and he had a sandy complexion, blue eyes and a slow smile. He was experienced. He had worked for the chain in one of the company's New York stores and he knew the stock.

He was efficient, too, in waiting upon customers. He took the orders as they were given and had the merchandise on the counter in front of them before they could say "Scat." He piled it up in a neat little circle. He put it into the big bag and he wrote down the prices on it and added up the total just about as fast as his pencil could travel.

In the rush hours, he was always right behind Will Rossen and Jimmie Spain, the two other clerks, and Lin, himself. There would be a crowd of women customers, some of them fuming with impatience waiting at the counter. The other three would be busy. And Ed would come along. He worked steadily.

LIKE A ROBOT

He was everything a good chain store clerk should be. Lin, the store manager, admitted that to himself, time after time. But there was something lacking in him. Then it came to him like a flash. There was nothing personal about Ed Holster. He acted just like a machine, with all its impersonality and all its efficiency. The customers resented it.

Customers, especially women, liked to hear Lin, himself, or Will Rossen or Jimmie Spain address them by their names.

Ed Holster couldn't do that. He never said "Good morning" or "Good afternoon" to anybody. He just stepped up to the counter and said "Yes Ma'am" and stood there waiting for the orders.

So none of the customers ever asked for him like they did for Lin or Will or Jimmie. They never said, "I want Mr. Holster to wait on me. He knows exactly what I want."

Now, that seems like a pretty trivial thing but it isn't. Friendship sells as much goods, almost, as quality. If a customer likes a clerk, he can point out the advantages of buying something he or she hadn't thought of buying. A purchase means goods moving. Ed couldn't move goods.

Lin thought of all these things. He didn't want to think of them because he liked Ed. But he had to because he was manager of an important store and he had to keep up his sales average.

Near the end of the second week, he began thinking of how he would break the news to Ed that he wasn't quite suitable for the Three Corners store. He worked out several little speeches and then discarded them. He stalled until Saturday night and then he knew he couldn't just say to him, "You're through." So he lied to himself and said he would give Ed just one more chance.

Lin thought that what was going on in his mind was a secret from Ed Holster. He was wrong. Ed knew what he was thinking. And he knew that Lin was right. He knew all about himself. He knew why he was shy. He could never learn how to smile and joke with people. People scared him until he knew them very well.

He really had to know them awfully well, like he knew Betty, his wife, and Carol, his two-year-old baby. He'd bet both of them would laugh if he ever told them that he was kind of afraid to meet people.

Ed never had any trouble making friends with dogs, either. As a matter of fact, he had a lot of trouble keeping dogs from following him along the street. He could speak to a dog and it would leave whatever it was doing and come right after him.

HIS BIG PROBLEM

He had a way of handling them.

Well, he thought, standing there in front of Lin in the store that Saturday night and feeling the envelope with his pay in it which Lin had just given him and reading Lin's decision to give him another chance, dogs weren't his problem. People were. And he didn't think he was going to be able to solve the problem.

"Good night, Ed," Lin said as Ed went through the door on his way home. He wanted Ed to know that he liked him so that when he told him, early next week, that he was getting another clerk, a brisker and more friendly clerk in his place, starting the next week, Ed would know that there was nothing personal in the dismissal.

"Good night, Mr. Mowberry," Ed answered. He put a lot of warmth in it because he wanted Lin to know that he understood perfectly. He wanted Lin to know that he appreciated his position, and Ed knew there was nothing personal in it.

There was nothing personal in it for Lin but there was plenty personal in it for Ed and Betty and Carol, especially Carol. The baby was the reason he had come out from New York to the suburban town in which the Three Corners store was located. Carol wasn't well. Her food didn't agree with her. The doctor said that the crowded, hurrying life of the city got on her nerves. She ought to have a lot of country air and surroundings.

So Ed had put in for a job in the suburbs and got the one at Three Corners. Walking along the main street on his way home, he wondered how he would break the news to Betty. And then, like Lin, he temporized and put it off. He decided he wouldn't tell her until Lin told him. Maybe, Lin wouldn't tell him.

He came to the street on which he lived and turned the corner from which he could see his house. It was a two family house and it sat in a nice big lot so that there was a front yard in which Carol could play.

From the corner, he could see that the downstairs part of the house in which he lived was all lit up and he knew that Betty and Carol would be waiting for him. Carol would be hiding just inside the door, ready to pounce on him as soon as he opened it.

A sudden sadness hit him, as though he already had lost this little place in which the three of them had been so happy. He decided to do something heroic starting next Monday. He would brace himself and start talking to the customers, just as though he had known them all his life, just as Will Rossen and Jimmie Spain and Mr. Mowberry did. Then, Mr. Mowberry wouldn't say what he was going to say. Then, Ed could stay right on the Three Corners store. But even as he made his resolve he knew he couldn't overcome his shyness.

He was almost to his house when he heard children screaming. His first thought was that it was too late for little kids to be out playing in the streets and his second thought was that something terrible must be happening. And at the moment, about fourteen kids came boiling out of a side street. They scattered in all directions. Instinctively, Ed waited to see what was chasing them. He saw almost immediately. It was a big black mongrel dog.

ED TAKES A CHANCE

The dog came on a staggering run. It kept on a straight course, although its head was down and its jaws drooling. Four of the children were standing huddled together at the fence in front of his house. The dog was staggering toward them, growling and whining in his throat. And Ed, who knew all about dogs, knew that the dog was mad.

Ed was scared to death of people, but he wasn't a bit scared of dogs. He brought himself forward on the balls of his feet. He sprang straight in the path of the dog, so that he was between it and the cowering children. He spoke to it.

The dog kept right on coming. Ed leaped at him.

As he came within reach the dog struck, snapping twice at the arm which Ed threw in front of it. But the arm wasn't there.

It was driving Ed's hand to the dog's neck at a spot at the base of his head. The hand clutched and Ed lifted the dog in the air.

"Get out of here, you kids!" he yelled. "All of you! Run!" Other people were screaming now. From somewhere two policemen came running. They had their revolvers out.

"No," Ed refused. "He may have bitten someone. I'll hold him until he can be taken alive."

And he did. He held him for five minutes, until somebody came along with a net and wrapped the dog in it until it could be taken away and held for observation.

When he came into the house, Betty and Carol were standing as though they were paralyzed. And Betty threw her arms around him and said, "Oh, Ed. Thank God. You shouldn't have done that. But I'm glad you did."

Ed went back to work that Monday morning, still trying to figure a way of meeting people without shyness. But by mid-morning, he knew he would be fired sure because reporters swarmed into the store to take his picture and have him tell the story of the mad dog.

Then customers came in and insisted that he wait on them. They wouldn't have anybody else. At the end of the day, Ed was so tired he couldn't see. When he was getting ready to go home, Lin called him aside.

"Ed," he said, "I'm glad you're to stay with us. I was afraid for a while you wouldn't. That was a fine thing you did Saturday night." And then he started to laugh at Ed's answer. Ed said, "Why, Mr. Mowberry, anybody would have done what I did. There was nothing personal in it."

"Get out of here, you kids!" he yelled. "All of you! Run!"

AUSTEN LAKE

Jimmy Ices Lou's And Bobby's Cake

AUSTEN LAKE

THE SHADES OF EVENING WERE FALLING over the sultry summer scene as the golden finger of Fenway's clock inched toward 6:30 and the curfew hour when the Law says: "Let there be no more baseball!" The score-board read, "White Sox 8, Red Sox 8," and the 33,500 witnesses stood with their souls in their eyes, fuzz on their tongues and sucking all the available air into their lungs. The park was one big vacuum!

And right there, my friends, is where Jimmy Foxx, who has heard himself called "Hero, tramp, darling and bum" in his Boston day, arched a ninth inning home run into the center field fishnets.

There was no doubt of the little white pellet's destination as it went winging on its way. The White Sox players took one professional peek as it flew overhead, tucked their mittens in hip pockets and trudged toward the players' tunnels. No backward glances! They knew! But the crowd, with a caution bred of 22 years of disappointment, watched silently for a long and hesitant moment. Then as the ball nestled into the webbing, it let off a vast and cataclysmic whoop that went over the roof-tops and rattled the windows in Revere.

Problem in the Twilight

OF ALL THE TECHNICAL TANGLES which Boston's 6:30 Sunday baseball law has worked in the past, none was more curious than the predicament which the White Sox faced in the last half of the ninth. Mind you the score was tied at eight-all, which normally would make it anybody's ball game. But not this game!

Indeed as the Red Sox came out for the final half-inning, the most optimistic hope in Chicago minds was for a tie game. They couldn't win! And, on the other hand, the most pessimistic outlook for the Red Sox was also a tie. They couldn't lose!

It's a complex mixture of time, action and law which works this way.

Boston's civil Sunday law says that ball games must end ebruptly at 6:30 p. m. No pouting about it! No pleading "Aw Gosh! Let's just finish the inning." The law means Smacko! right on the tick of 6:30, and a platoon of coppers are there to seize the field. In fact once during the old Braves regime, when the athletes were a little dilatory and inclined to stretch the law, a lieutenant of police walked out and shooed the players to the showers.

That's the civil half of the law! The League law says that if 6:30 arrives before an inning is ended, that inning and all the hits and runs made by either side therein, shall be rubbed off the record. The game must revert to the previous full, completed inning.

So what? So the Hapless White Sox, having scored the tying run in their first of the ninth had to retire the Red Sox in the remaining half in the few minutes of grace left. If they failed the game would go back to the end of the eighth when the score stood Red Sox 8, White Sox 7. They faced defeat that way! And on the other hand if the Red Sox scored again the game ended at the instant a Boston foot touched the plate. So they'd lose that way too! The only glimmer of hope they had was to get all three Red Sox out in the few remaining minutes and keep the game in status quo, as the lawyers say! Half a loaf was better than none!

Lou and Bobby Make It Possible

SO JIMMY FOXX'S HOME RUN CHILLED that little hope. Though, if you want to be technical about it, Jimmy didn't hit a home run at all. Because at the instant his swipe soared into the catch-alls, Ted Williams was on base. And at the instant Ted's enormous tootsies touched the plate, the issue was irrevocably settled and therefore "ended" at 9 to 8. So the Fenway crowd had the strange sight of seeing blocky J. E. F. traipse around the bases while both teams, somewhat discourteously, too, it seemed, were rushing off to get their share of the hot water and grab the early taxicabs. And with all the other laws, shouldn't there be a law requiring both rival and home team players to stand politely in position until Foxx could complete his tour?

Foxx's homer, dramatic as it was, was really the icing on a cake which a couple of other fellows baked. Because without Lou Finney and Bobby Doerr, Jimmy's homer would have merely been No. 13 in his season's string and a futile shot in the dark. For Lou, a lad whom Tom Yawkey picked off Connie Mack's rubbish heap last year for little more than carfare money, tied the game with a home run in the 5th, tied it again with a double in the 7th, and appeared to have won it with a single in the 8th. And Bobby tied it with a two-run homer in the 8th. So these Mother's-little-helpers accounted for six of the ten runs scored.

Strange, isn't it, that the Red Sox could play such a rousing, all-for-glory type of baseball in the last half of their double header after performing such a torpid, dull and lackadaisical contest in the first half? They lost that one by 6 to Ouch and heard a scattering of Saugus cheers, a little noise like the amplified sound of tearing cloth and made by forcing the breath between tongue and lips. But the capacity crowd forgave all that and they went down the ramps at 6:30 to face wifely wrath and ice box suppers with gladness in their eyes and glory in their hearts. They were people with their pennant vision still unspoiled.

Deborah Verry Guns For Mrs. Beard's State Golf Crown

WORCESTER, June 3—For the first time in 18 years, the Women's Golf Association of Massachusetts championship is to be decided over the long, hilly and testing Worcester Country Club course, starting with an 18-hole qualifying round today, in which 39 entries are playing for 32 places.

Back in 1922, when Mrs. Donald M. Belcher, Winchester, won the W. G. A. title here, the qualifying figure was 107, despite the fact that in those days all but the low 16 were eliminated during the stroke competition test.

Apparently, the rank and file of W. G. A. golfers want no truck with the Worcester Country Club. Usually, between 75 and 100 play in the W. G. A. championships.

This year only 39 entries were received, and in all probability less than that number will start. So all that will be necessary to qualify for match play will be to finish.

DEBORAH VERRY

LoneThreat to Mrs.Beard

Mrs. H. Warren Beard, Charles River, is the defending champion and the odds-on favorite. Mrs. Beard has held the state title for three out of the last four years and is the class of the Bay State fair sex golfers.

Deborah Verry, Tatnuck, who dethroned Mrs. Beard three years ago in the W. G. A. finals at The Country Club, is a serious threat and practically the only contender in the field with better than an outside chance of defeating the titleholder.

THREE EX-CHAMPS

There are three other former champions in the field. Mrs. E. H. Baker, Jr., Oakley, six time winner of the title. Mrs. John Grew, Dedham, who stopped Mrs. Henri F. Prunaret in the finals at Charles River in 1933, and Mrs. William N. Austin, The Country Club, who captured the diadem ten years ago.

Margaret Curtis, Essex County Club; Rosamond Vahey, Mrs. Edward C. Stone, Oyster Harbors, and Mrs. Donald M. Belcher are the former titleholders, who, although they were active during the spring district team matches, failed to send in their entries for the 40th annual W. G. A. championships.

After the qualifications today the low 32 will be paired. Match play will start tomorrow and continue at the rate of one round per day through Saturday.

Golfers to Aid Red Cross Fund

CHICAGO, June 3 (AP) — President Tom Walsh of the Professional Golfers Association said tonight plans are underway to enlist the country's topflight golfers in raising money for the Red Cross.

"I am going to the National Open at Cleveland this week to talk to the players and with Ed Dudley, chairman of the P. G. A. tournament committee on these plans," Walsh said. "I wrote two of the association officials a week ago suggesting we get behind the Red Cross drive for funds.

"After discussing the matter with the players and Dudley I will lay our plans before the executive committee. In this way we'll have the entire organization behind us in helping such a worthy cause."

R. I. Boy Succeeds Walter Hagen, Jr. As Irish Captain

SOUTH BEND, Ind., June 3 (AP) Sammy Neild of Central Falls, R. I., a junior, will captain the Notre Dame golf team next year, succeeding Walter Hagen, Jr., of Detroit, who has been graduated.

Neild is a former W. R. Hearst New England junior golf champion. He won the title back in 1935.

Tailer and Kelly Best-Ball Victors

WESTBURY, N. Y., June 2 (AP)—John (Shipwreck) Kelly, part owner of the Broklyn Dodgers pro football club, and T. Suffern (Tommy) Tailer teamed up today to win the Meadow Brook Club's annual invitation bestball golf tournament.

The victory was the biggest kind of a surprise, for Kelly up to a couple of months ago was accustomed to playing golf like almost any former football star with a "regular" score in the 102's. He did his share by contributing a birdie three at the seventh to help beat Howell Van Gerbig and Earl Smith, 1 up, in the semi-final, and putting in a ninth-hole three and a four on the 18th to the final victory over Carl Timpson and E P. Bernuth, 1 up.

DRIVER FRAME HURT

FOXX DEFIES DOCTOR: STAYS IN LINEUP

Dom DiMag Loses Out As Jim Plays

By BILL GRIMES

Disregarding the advice of Dr. Tommy Richards, Jimmy Foxx announced that he would be at his usual first base post this afternoon when the Red Sox clashed with the White Sox in the fourth and final game of their series at Fenway Park.

When Mike Tresn hit Jimmy in the back in the first game of the Sunday double header Double X suffered a painful injury. He was examined between games, and it was discovered that Tresh had broken some blood vessels when he nicked Foxxie with the ball.

FOXX SPARK PLUG

Foxx was advised not to play the second game but he insisted upon carrying on, which, as developed later, was very fortunate for the Red Sox.

After his home run had broken up the nightcap, Jimmy underwent another thorough examination and was instructed to return to his hotel and remain in bed for at least a day.

Foxx' decision to play deprived Dom DiMaggio, $75,000 rookie from the Coast League, of his opportunity to break into the Sox starting lineup. DiMaggio was slated to take over Lou Finney's spot in right field with Finney moving in to first base.

With the Yankees only five and a half games behind them, the Sox went out to make it three out of four against the White Sox this afternoon.

Manager Joe Cronin planned to send Herb Hash to the hilltop, and Manager Jimmy Dykes relied on Bill Dietrich, his bespectacled right hander, to give him an even break on the four game series.

HASH HAS BAD KNEE

Hash was seeking his fifth victory of the season today. On his last time out, he stopped the Yankees without over-exerting himself and if he had as much stuff this afternoon as he had in the Stadium on Memorial Day, the Dykesmen were in for a tough afternoon.

Although it isn't generally known, Hash has been troubled with a bad knee of late. He has, however, been working out every day and through the untiring efforts of Trainer Win Green, his ailment is well under control.

After he had beaten the Yankees in New York, Hash was treated by Green on the train, and the rookie right hander has been a daily patient at the Green clinic since the club returned home.

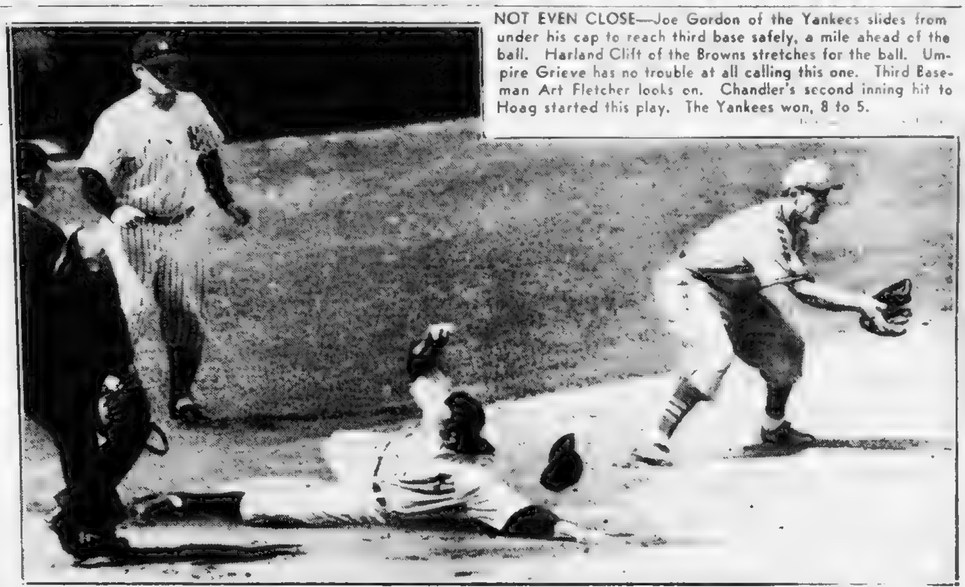
For the 'steenth time, Foxx proved the man of the hour for the Red Sox yesterday. After they had lost the first game to the masterly hurling of Ted Lyons, the Red Sox were well on their way to another defeat when "Double X" went into action. In the first game, Jimmy made two of the six hits that the Red Sox came up with off the 39-year-old White Sox hurler.

Going into the 8th in the second game, the Red Sox were trailing by two runs. Bobby Doerr wiped out that deficit with a homer with Manager Joe aboard, and before the round was over, Lou Finney had put them out in front with a hit which scored Johnny Peacock.

But the White Sox got to Emmy Dickman in the ninth and took over the lead again.

Weight Threatens Bronsdon's Riding

Jockey A. Bronsdon is deliberating over retiring from the saddle and taking up the duties of jockey agent. Increasing weight has made it difficult for the youngster to keep down to riding trim, and he may give up the saddle temporarily.



NOT EVEN CLOSE—Joe Gordon of the Yankees slides from under his cap to reach third base safely, a mile ahead of the ball. Harland Clift of the Browns stretches for the ball. Umpire Grieve has no trouble at all calling this one. Third Baseman Art Fletcher looks on. Chandler's second inning hit to Hoag started this play. The Yankees won, 8 to 5.

UMPIRE GRIEVE ART FLETCHER JOE GORDON HARLAND CLIFT

HERO — Jimmy Foxx scores on ninth inning homer which beat White Sox, 10-8.

Bowden Gains Final In New Jersey Tennis

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., June 3 (AP)—Frank Bowden of New York, top-seeded player, moved into the final round of the annual Orange Lawn Tennis Club's men's singles invitation tournament by disposing of Tom Kelley of Portland, Ore., and Clifford Sutter of New York.

Bowden, fifth-ranking Eastern star, will face the winner of the June 15 semi-final match between Martin Buxby of Miami and S. Ellsworth Davenport, 3rd, of Forest Hills, N. Y., in the finals on June 16.

Bees Ask Sullivan To Beat Derringer

CINCINNATI, June 3—Seeking an even break in their current series with the league-leading Reds, Manager Casey Stengel was to shoot Lefty Joe Sullivan against the Rhinelanders here this afternoon.

The Reds took Saturday's game and came out with the draw in the Sunday twin bill and depended upon Paul Derringer whom the Bees shelled from the hill on their last visit here, for the series edge today.

The Sabbath doubleheader saw the Bees fall before the mighty right arm of Bucky Walters, who registered his ninth straight triumph with very little effort.

Al Piechota started for the Bees and was nicked for three straight singles. That was enough for him. Nick Strincevich was rushed into the game and before he settled down the Reds had scored up five runs, which is more than Walters ever needs.

Old Jim Turner, once a member of the Bees, came up with a great effort in his attempt to give the Reds their sixth straight victory, but Dick Errickson trimmed him with a shutout and took a 2 to 0 verdict to make up for the 11 to 1 trouncing the Swarm suffered in the first game.

This was the first shutout the Reds had suffered since Tex Carleton blanked them with that no-hitter back on April 30.

It was a tough loss for Turner. He had allowed only four hits and faced only 18 batters in the first six innings. The game was then halted because of rain, and 36 minutes delay didn't do Jim any good.

When play resumed, Lopez singled and moved along when Miller beat out an infield hit. Errickson then grounded to Myers at shortstop. The ball skidded along on the wet grass and then took a hop on which Myers erred and the bases were loaded.

Sisti flied to Craft, and Lopez scampered home with Miller going to third. Gene Moore then picked up his first single of the year in a Boston uniform, and home came Miller with the deciding run.

29 Redskins Already Signed, Says Flaherty

SPOKANE, Wash., June 3 (AP)—Ray Flaherty, coach of the Washington Redskins of the National Professional Football League, has signed 29 players to 1940 contracts.

This number, he said, sets a record in the league for this early in the season.

"For the first time since I have been in Washington, we will have more than one or two backfield men who weigh 200 pounds or more. This should give us the power for line plays we have been lacking in the past.

"With the signing of Bob Hoffman of Southern California, Ray Hare of Georgia and Le oy Zimmerman of San Jose State, I will have three new men who tip the beams at more than 200 pounds.

"I am especially pleased at having signed Willard (Bolo) Perdue of Duke, an end, and Charles (Chuck) Slagle of North Carolina, a guard. Both these boys are the rough and ready type and should be a big help to us."

Yankee Division To Stage 'Pure' Show

Patrons attending the "Yankee Division in France Show" at Mechanics Building Thursday evening will witness the type of performance enjoyed by our overseas veterans when they were in the rest areas behind the lines in France.

In addition to a dozen well-arranged amateur boxing bouts, some of them among the sons of veterans, there will be at least as many high-grade vaudeville acts featuring well-known radio and theatrical talent. Three military bands will also be in attendance.

English Race Classic Slated for Newmarket

LONDON, June 3 (AP)—The Derby and the Oaks, English racing fixtures which were moved from Epsom to Newbury, will be run instead at Newmarket.

NO HITTER ELUDES REDS

CINCINNATI, June 3 (AP)—Write this on the wall somewhere (high, so the little woman won't see it).

One of these days, soon maybe, some pitcher for the Cincinnati Reds is going to throw himself a no-hitter. It's in the cards and maybe it'll be the St. Louis Cards.

The argument

From Sunday to Sunday Manager Bill McKechnie's pitchers have to their credit: Item, one one-hitter; item, one three-hitter; item three four-hitters; item, one five hitter. For ten games in eight days that is a showing, and if you think the opposition likes it, ask some sluggers like Joe Medwick and Johnny Mize of the Cards, Arky Vaughan of Pittsburgh, and Max West of Boston.

Another point worth noting is how close some of the boys have come to the glory games. In taking his five-hit, ninth straight win yesterday, unbeaten Bucky Walters held the Bees hitless until the sixth. Milkman Jim Turner cut down all but one of the first 18 men in his game and four hits were all the Bees had to work on for their 2-to-0 victory.

Credit for the record is pretty well distributed. The best game was Paul Derringer's one hitter against the Cardinals last Sunday. Whitey Moore and Joe Beggs combined Monday for a four hit job against the Pirates. Walters gave the Pirates four hits Tuesday. Gene Thompson allowed the Bees three Saturday.

So write it down somewhere—but don't bet on it. Baseball being the game it is.

JIMMY GRIPPO BILLY CONN MELIO BETTINA

EVIL EYE FAILS—Jimmy Grippo tried to put the old whammy on Billy Conn as Billy and Melio Bettina weighed in for their Pittsburgh bout, but it didn't work. Conn whaled Bettina, kept light heavy title. Grippo, from photo, seems to be hexing his own fighter more than Conn. Watch him work when Bettina faces Al McCoy at Garden next Friday night.

HUB TO SEE 'NEW' M'COY AGAINST BETTINA FRIDAY

Boston will see a "new" Al McCoy when the popular French-Canadian clouter returns here Friday night to fight Melio Bettina, former light-heavyweight champion of the world, in a 10-round Goodwin A. C. feature at the Boston Garden.

This is the promise of his pilot, Bill Brennan, who thinks McCoy is going to crash through into the front ranks after many threats, most of which missed by an eyelash.

"Al has been looking impressive lately," says Brennan, telling of McCoy's recent conquests out of town. "He's due, and this is the spot for him to come through."

For once McCoy will not have to give away too much weight when he mixes with Bettina. And Mike Jacobs, boxing czar, is expected to be at ringside to sign the winner with the victor in the coming Tony Galento-Max Baer fight.

Bettina, who knocked out Tiger Jack Fox to acquire the cruiser crown and then kayoed a formidable challenger, Fred Apostli, lost his title to Billy Conn, who produced an amazing boxing display to ward off the hard punching Bettina and take the title.

This sector will get its first look at Bettina tomorrow. Melio and his gay manager, Jimmy Grippo, the hypnotist and evil eye exponent, are due in town tomorrow to finish training at a local gym.

The supporting card for the show finds Larry Bolvin, Providence, fighting Bob "Poison" Ivy, Hartford, in the eight-round semi-final.

Sixes will be Al Dutra, Cambridge, vs. Young Horst, Lewiston; Billy Tordiglione, North End, vs. Seam Hynes, Ireland; and Dom De Ciantis, Providence, vs. Jerry Zullo, Chelsea.

Godoy's Style Still Puzzles Brown Bomber

GREENWOOD LAKE, N. Y., June 3 (AP)—Joe Louis, training for his return bout with Arturo Godoy on June 20, has no trouble with three of his sparmates, but the fourth—the one that fights most like Godoy—still has him baffled.

This one is Joe O'Gatty of Toms River, N. J., a crowding, pushing, crouching type, much like the Chilean.

In their Sunday drill he mauled the heavyweight champion around the ring, pushed him against the ropes and into corners, and altogether had a lot of fun for two rounds.

Joe made up for this embarrassment by flattening Emil Scholz, a weaving, bobbing Bostonian, in one round with a left hook, giving Emanuel Murray of New York a lot of body punishment for a round, and tagging George Nicholson frequently for two more.

It was his eighth day of boxing in ten days he has been at his training camp here.

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

AN AMERICAN millionaire during the lush days of the Golden Nineties took a seat beside a roulette wheel in a gambling house in Florida. The millionaire took 50 $1000 bills out of a wallet, and tossed the money across the table at an attendant.

Arturo Godoy

"Can I buy some chips at $1000 each?" asked the millionaire who was saturated with his own importance.

"As many as you wish, sir," replied the attendant who had been schooled well in the knowledge that the percentage is always running in favor of the wheel.

"Then let me have 50 chips," said the millionaire bruskly.

The attendant pushed 50 chips across the table.

The wheel was soon spinning merrily. The wheel did not feel the least bit important because chips that had cost $1000 were being dropped on the red of the roulette board. If the wheel could have talked it would have said that it had been going round and round all Winter, and that the house had done a very good business. There were, of course, a few bad nights, but on the whole business had been very prosperous.

The wheel could have told of the steel king who got his principal recreation out of playing roulette. The steel king would often play roulette until 6 o'clock in the morning. If he lost, he lit his pipe, and calmly walked out of the place. On those occasions when he won, he split his winnings with the attendants in the gambling room.

Maybe this is why $1000 chips didn't impress the wheel too much. The little ball kept falling on numbers that registered black, and the important millionaire moved away from the roulette table in direction of a dice game poorer by $50,000.

The attendant could have told the millionaire if he had a mind to do so that lavish gambling houses could not flourish and pay huge dividends to their backers if the players won too frequently.

Louis Takes Million-Dollar Gamble

THERE WILL not be a roulette wheel set up in the center of the Yankee Stadium in New York on the evening of June 20, but the Temple that Ruth built will be the scene of a million-dollar gamble.

There will be a ring pitched back of second base. Over the ring there will be huge lights that will make everything in the vicinity of the ring as bright as day. Back a few yards from the ring will be high stands where moving picture cameras will be perched.

Around the ring will be a dozen rows of press seats where sports writers from all parts of the world will be seated. Jammed in with the writers will be photographers, some of whom will be better equipped than others as they will be taking Speed-Ray pictures which register action with a flash of from 30,000 to 100,000th of a second.

Back of the press rows will be the ringside seats, then the stands and pavilions with their thousands of spectators.

Finally Arturo Godoy of Chile, a 200-pound giant, will climb into the ring, and he will be followed by Joe Louis of Detroit, world's heavyweight champion. The rival heavyweights will be greeted with cheers.

Louis will sit in his corner, a dead pan expression on his face, while his seconds adjust his boxing gloves. The fists encased in the gloves are Louis' chips. On the way he uses his fists depends $1,000,000. The $50,000 risk at roulette of the American millionaire was only small change compared with the gamble the "Brown Bomber" will be taking when he opposes Godoy.

Champion Always Has Mental Hazard

LOUIS WILL recognize his risk. He will know that defeat will move him from the position he has gained in the fistic sun. Apart from the $1,000,000 financial risk Louis will take in the Godoy bout is the loss of prestige that would go with defeat.

Louis and his management have justly taken pride in the way they have conducted themselves in the boxing game. They have tried to blaze a new trail that will always be a credit to them. They do not believe their work is yet done.

This explains the tenseness one will find at Louis' camp as the day of battle approaches. Joe has everything to lose, only money to gain in the Godoy bout.

Last February in the New York Garden Godoy went 15-rounds with Louis. One judge voted for the Chilean heavyweight. One more ballot would have given him the championship.

When Godoy sits on the porch of his cottage at his training camp at Carmel, N. Y., he may be excused if he does a little day dreaming. Who wouldn't if there was a million dollars worth of fistic chips in front of him waiting to be picked up?

KEEPSIE THREATS—Cornell varsity eight, which broke favored Harvard's string on Lake Cayuga recently, gets in trim for annual Poughkeepsie regatta, in which they will be biggest eastern threat. 40-Yr.-Old Ted Lyons Latest Sensation in Junior League

By Associated Press

The best "Sunday pitcher" in the baseball business right now is that grizzly veteran of the Chicago White Sox, Ted Lyons, who has been with the same club for 17 years and was 40 years old Dec. 28.

Born in 1900, the same year as Lefty Grove, Lyons came to the American league direct from the campus of Baylor university in 1923, two years before Grove, and still is going strong.

In fact he is the strongest gear in the Sox' well-worn driveshaft today with four victories and two defeats. Chicago has played nine games in the last seven days and won three. Of these three, Lyons won two.

This spring he has pitched every Sunday except one that it rained and he showed up at Fenway Park, Boston, yesterday on schedule. The result was a 6-0 shutout of the league-leading Red Sox on six hits. It was the 225th triumph of his major league career.

FOXX THE HERO

The Red Sox recovered from this masterful going over sufficiently to beat out Chicago, 10-8, in the second game with Jimmie Foxx notching his 13th home run with one on in the ninth inning. Bobby Doerr and Lou Finney also homered for Boston.

The fact that the Cleveland Indians also divided a double bill with the Philadelphia Athletics left the American League squabble in status quo. Bob Feller achieved his eighth victory, 7-2, over the A's, giving eight hits. But Philadelphia turned the tables in the nightcap by rallying for seven runs in the seventh inning and a 12-6 conquest.

In the National League the Brooklyn Dodgers whacked a game off the margin separating them and the pace-making Cincinnati Reds by squeezing two one-run decisions out of the Chicago Cubs, 3-2, and 2-1.

Jim Wasdell hit a double for one Brooklyn run in the second inning of the first game, then doubled again in the ninth for the other two. In the nightcap Manager Leo Durocher doubled two tallies across in the second stanza.

REDS, BEES SPLIT

The Reds divided two games with the Boston Bees. Bucky Walters bagged his ninth victory without a defeat in the first game, 11-1, holding Boston helpless on five hits and getting the help of two home runs by John Rizzo.

The second game, which Boston won, 2-0, was a scoreless duel between Dick Errickson and Jim Turner for seven innings. Then rain interrupted Turner off to the point of giving up the pair of markers in the eighth.

Pittsburgh edged out the New York Giants, 2-1, in the eighth inning after Bob Klinger and Hal Schumacher each had pitched seven runless frames, but New York bounced back to take the second game, 7-3, although outhit, 11-10, and outhomered, 2-1.

At St. Louis two pitchers chalked up their first wins of the season. Boom Boom Beck of the Phillies stopped the Cards, 4-2, on seven hits and Bob Bowman gave the same amount in winning for St. Louis, 9-2. John Mize hit his 13th and 14th home runs in the second game.

YANKEES SOAR

The world champion Yankees continued their upward surge at the expense of the St. Louis Browns with two triumphs, 13-4 and 11-1. Marius Russo and Marvin Breuer gave two well-pitched games but had the help of a terrific attack in which everyone of the other Yankees joined.

Detroit took a single game from the Washington Senators, 8-6. The Tigers were outhit, 12-9, but starting with Hank Greenberg's two-run homer in the first they piled up all their tallies in the first four frames and coasted in.

More than 200,000 fans turned out for the games on eight cities.

COMING AT YA'—The leaders charge directly at the camera as they finish one, two, three in the Roseben Handicap, fifth and feature race on the card at Belmont Park track. The Chief (2), Anderson up, is the winner, with Jay Jay (1) second and Straight Lead (3) third. They are making the dirt fly as they thunder ahead.

Dodger Reese Still Dizzy From Blow

CHICAGO, June 3 (AP)—Harold (Peewee) Reese, Brooklyn's 20-year-old shortstop, was resting comfortably today, but still dizzy from the blow on the head he received in Saturday's game with the Cubs.

Dr. John F. Davis, Cubs' physician who is treating Reese, said additional X-ray examinations of the spot where the rookie was struck by a pitched ball, revealed no skull fracture.

"However, I plan to make further examinations," Dr. Davis said. "When Reese moves around he becomes dizzy and nauseated, so we couldn't take all the X-rays we wanted to today.

"I am almost certain now there is no fracture, but I'm not excluding that possibility until I take further pictures."

He added that if Reese improves at a normal pace he should be able to play again in a few weeks.

Pitching Duel In CYO Clash

A fine pitching duel is in prospect this evening when the C. Y. O. teams of St. Thomas, Jamaica Plain, and St. Theresa's, West Roxbury, hook up at the Carolina ave. grounds.

Bill Connelly, Public Latin school star, will toe the mound for the St. Thomas nine with Ronald 'Red' Sliney, B. C. High ace hurling for the invaders.
